THIS WORK IS PUBLISHED BY THE AUTHOR FOR THE USE OF THE FAMILIES REPRESENTED, AND THEIR DESCENDANTS.

The above armorial bearings represent, with slight differences, eleven out of fifteen families of this name, as given in Burke's General Armory. [See pp. 15 and 16 of this work.] Both families were of Co. Kent at various periods. It has not yet been possible to connect the New-England families with their English ancestry.

NOTE.—Some of the elder New-England families have in their possession a coat of arms, similar to the above on the left. They were evidently painted by John Coles, and their genuineness is considered doubtful by heraldic authorities.

PREFACE.

At the solicitation of friends I submit the following genealogical records to those of the family who are immediately or remotely interested. In view of the hundreds of personal subjects treated, together with the impossibility of producing a publication of this nature without errors and imperfections, it is with diffidence that it is sent forth from the press, especially so, since the author considers who will be his readers. Primarily, it was not my purpose to publish a genealogy to be exposed to the animadversion of any possible censorious critic. This is not intended to be a work of literary merit, otherwise it would have been submitted to an expert, and revised before publication. Therefore, if any thing is found of error or is peculiar in orthography, the compiler would ask the indulgence of a discriminating posterity.

I have spared no pains to give a perfect record of the families represented, though not as full as I have desired. A few accounts sent me by correspondents are at variance with the records or other data. These I have harmonized as best I could. The biographical sketches of most persons mentioned are necessarily brief, while others are more full. Undoubtedly, not a few whose history is very briefly sketched are as much deserving of an extended notice as any who have received it: but their merits failed to reach the author. MANNS in England were honored in successive periods with royal Eavor, and their offspring were, no doubt, among the early fathers of brur country. There is a growing interest at the present day manithested by the descendants of the early settlers to know the names and history of their ancestors. This interest is laudable, and the giratification generally gives genuine satisfaction to the living, and Mill be the means of insuring an invaluable legacy to the coming Moreover, pedigrees are invaluable aids to the student eneration. m history.

The plan adopted in this work is the comprehensive one in use by ur New England Historic Genealogical Society, and is easily undertood. The children of each head of a family are to be found directly under his or her name. When the information concerning the children is limited, and their posterity not numerous, the whole record is generally given at once. When otherwise, the name is designated by a number at the left, carried forward, on a subsequent page, in brackets, and makes the starting point of a new family. The names in Italics which are in parenthesis at the beginning of each new family, by the aid of the exponent number at the right, carry the line directly back to the original ancestor. These small exponent figures at the right of christian names should be carefully noted, to determine at sight to what generation the subject belongs, and to assist in tracing out each family. The abbreviations common to all works of this kind are used to facilitate the labor and lessen the cost of the book. To trace a line of descent in the American families, seek the Index.*

In the prosecution of the work the author is indebted to the valuable library of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, and to the obliging custodians of both Plymouth and Massachusetts colonial and probate records. I am under great obligations to those who have procured and sent me dates and facts, and herewith express to them all my sincere thanks. For special information I am indebted to Alrick H. Man, Esq., and Rev. Brady E. Backus, D.D., of New York city; Henry Dutch Lord, Esq., of Boston; Herbert A. Backus, Esq., of Detroit, Mich.; Addison C. Miller and Frederick G. Fincke, Esqrs., of Utica, N. Y; Matthew D. Mann, M.D., of Buffalo, N. Y. Albert Holbrook, Esq., of Providence, R. I.; Horace Mann, Esq., of Natick, Mass.; Stafford Mann, Esq., of Lincoln, R. I.; Mrs. Charlotte M. Phelps, of Hebron, Conn., and many others. For a portion of the records of the Randolph (Mass.) family line, I am indebted to the efforts of Miss Luthera H. Mann, of that town; and for many Ohio records thanks are due Mrs. Ellen S. Lockwood, of East Plymouth, Ohio. The printers of this Memorial are also deserving of thanks for the creditable manner in which they have performed their part of the work.

If the perusal of these pages, by this and future generations, should serve to animate any latent desires for a nobler life and higher culture, and if its readers are stimulated to guard with jealous care the fair fame they inherit, and emulate the heroic examples of virtue, excellence, and pious endeavor of their ancestors, in their love for civil and religious liberty, then the labor and money expended on this compilation may not have been in vain.

INTRODUCTION.

THE name Man or Mann* appears very early in English history, and, no doubt, earlier in Germany as a patronymic; but as the author has not made any extended effort to trace the genealogical order of the family beyond the confines of the United States, the sphere of this volume is necessarily confined to this country, and to the period since the beginning of the first settlements made here by our honored forefathers. A few general facts which are gleaned from various English records, and inserted on the first few pages of this work, are sufficient to show that the family have lived in England from a remote period. There were a number of the name who early left the Old Country, came to America, settled, and had families. Of the foregoing, those whom I have found recorded in history are mentioned in this volume, in order, if possible, to stimulate and facilitate more extended research in the future. These families may be found on the pages immediately following the English records. Whether any of these first settlers were brothers, or otherwise related, the author has not been able to determine. The branch that is mainly and more fully treated in this volume, is the line of which RICHARD MAN, of Scituate, Mass., was the head. The descendants of this early New England settler have been pretty thoroughly traced, and their lives briefly sketched. The records of this family occupy the main body of this work.

giv In the earliest English records the name is generally written, "Man"; in the h and 18th centuries both ways,—"Man," "Mann." Edward Man, compt. of the t of Ipswich, Eng., in 1634-5, entered his name both ways, thus—"Edward man," "Edward Mann." Most of the families in this country gradually changed from lan" to "Mann" about the time of the Revolution. A very few of the influential lilies still hold to the single "n," thus, "Man." I have adopted a uniform method He his work, and have written the name with the single "n" up to and including the rth generation; starting in the fifth generation and on to the present with the ible "n," thus, "Mann."—ED.

In briefly treating the various other Manns in this country as preliminary to the main (Richard Man) branch, I have made considerable effort to trace the descendants of William Man, the early settler of Cambridge, Mass., through his only son, Rev. Samuel, of Wrentham, Mass., and down a few generations (some lines to the present), in order to separate* and distinguish these families from the Richard Man branch, above alluded to; for I have found persons bearing the name who had supposed that these two lines were of one and the same branch, though without apparent reason.

"HARTFORD, Dec. 9, 1847.

To Gov. J. S. Peters, of Hebron, Conn. Sir:—To-day, R. R. Hinman, Esq., and Dr. Hitchcock called upon me, with an old pamphlet containing some historical facts of the family. The Dr.'s mother was a Mann before marriage. I want to inquire at what time did Grandfather John Mann come to Hebron, from what place did he come, who was his father, or what was the name of my great-grandfather, and where did he reside? * * * * what was the name of my great-grandather, which is a supplied the names and dates taken from the pamphlet, etc.

Benning Mann."

In this pamphlet, William Mann the early Cambridge settler is mentioned, also his descendants. Nathaniel (grandson of William) is underscored as being the Hebron ancestor .- ED.

The following is a brief extract of Gov. J. S. Peters's reply.

"MY DEAR SIR:

Your grandfather, John Mann, stated to me many years ago that his ancestors came from England to Massachusetts, that his father emigrated to Mansfield in this State (Conn.), and gave the town his name, Mans-field, from thence to Hebron, and located on the farm that Cyrus lives on, and that his name was Nathaniel. Nathaniel, John, Andrew, and Cyrus have succeeded each other in the possession of the farm.

The reader will readily see in the personal sketches of the family, in the body of this book, that John Mann above must have been in error. Mansfield, Conn., was probably named in honor of Col. Moses Mansfield, of New Haven. Nathaniel, alluded to in the above pamphlet, was grandson of William, and died in Wrentham, Mass., leaving a will. Nathaniel of Hebron was grandson of Richard of Scituate.—En

The late R. R. Hinman, of Hartford, in his "Early Puritan Settlers of Connecticut," claimed [erroneously] that the Hebron branch of the name in Conn. descended from William of Cambridge. An extract of a "correspondence" may show wherein, no doubt, he was led unadvisedly to this belief.

Derivation of the name Man or Mann.

R. Ferguson, London, 1864, has the following derivation in the "Teutonic Name System," p. 57: "There are several names of which the etymological meaning is simply Man * * * * And the words seem to be used, par excellence, as we apply the terms manly and beautiful. * * * * At the head of the list is Mann, which is in a more direct manner connected with hero worship than the rest, if, as is probably the case, its use as a name is to be traced up to the Mannus of Tacitus, the fabled son of the hero or god Tuisco, and the founder of the German nation. We do not, however, meet with the name in after times, at least in its simple form, before the seventh century, though in a compound form it is found as early as the fourth century. Two other forms are Men and Mon, the latter of which was Anglo-Saxon, and is still used in the Lowland Scotch."

Man (Old German—Manno, Manni, Meni (7th century). Simple (homo) (Anglo-Saxon—Mann, Manni, Mon. forms.

ENGLISH RECORDS.

ONE of the earliest notices of the family name of Man, in England, is to be found in the Domesday Book in 1086, where "Willelmus filius Manne" (William the son of Man) is mentioned as a landholder in the County of Hants. In "Our English Surnames," by C. W. Bardsley, M.A., the names Henry le Man and Richard le Man are cited to show the most ancient form of the name of the Man family, but no other particulars are given. A book entitled "Patronymica Britannica" states that the name Man signifies in old French, "Norman." Also, that in Dutch, de Man means "the man," a hero.—(Ib.)

Cornelius de Man, a celebrated (Scotch?) painter, was born at Delft, Holland, 1621, and died there in 1706.

In 1322, REGINALD LE MAN, of Diss., was Lord, who, in 1337, left it (Watton's Manor) to Alice, his wife, etc.—(Blom. Hist. Norfolk Co.)

In the 31st of Edward III. [1358], John Le Man held a third part of the manor of John de Denham, etc.—(Ib.)

In the 13th of Richard II. [1390], William Ode, who married Matild., dau. and heir of John Man, held their part of this manor till about the end of the reign of King Henry VI., when it was conveyed to Richard Sparwe, Gent., of Oxburgh, who, in 1482, settled on a chantry which he then founded in the Church of Oxburgh.—(Ib.)

ALEXANDER MAN was the 15th R. C. Bishop of Caithness, Scotland, A.D. 1389.

A very ancient family of Mans is referred to in the History of Northamptonshire (by Bridges, in Astor Library, N. Y.), as having lived in that County about 1326, and, from that time on, William, Robert and Thomas Man are mentioned.

JOHN MAN, A.M. [son of John Man, of London, Gentleman], was warden of Merton College, Oxford, 1562. In 1565 he was made Dean of "Gloster," and in August, 1567, was sent by Queen Elizabeth on an embassy to Spain, where he was accused of speaking irreverently of the Pope, and was excluded from the Court. He was recalled, and died in 1568.—(For Arms and Tabular Ped. see Vis. Essex.)

Daniel Man was professor of Astronomy in Gresham College, Oxford, in 1601.

HENRY MAN, R. C. Dean of Chester, was the 41st Bishop of the Isle of Man, in 1546.—(Beatson's Political Index.)

THOMAS MAN, condemned for heresy by the Roman Catholic Bishop of London, March 29, 1518, was delivered to the sheriff, who was on horseback in Paternoster row, and the same afternoon the said Thomas Man was burned at Smithfield.—(Fox's Book of Martyrs, p. 417.)

RICHARD MAN was in London in 1586, where he had a servant by the name of Phillippe Colston.

THOMAS MAN, Esq., sword bearer to the city of London, about 1675, m. Rebecca, dau. of Sir William Peake.—(Le Neve's Ped. of Knights.)

Note.—The record of the foregoing Mans of Poole, Eng., is from a work entitled, "Man, Needles, and Hambleton Families." It says: The MS. record of the Man family was originally commenced in Poole, England, by John Man, b. Oct. 17, A.D. 1495, d. 1578. It appears that the account of births of this branch was preserved up to the year 1600. From this time up to 1629 there was a lapse in the records (a very unfortunate circumstance for the American genealogist). John Man was mayor, A.D. 1539, and other years. Edward Man, mayor in 1589. Another Edward Man, mayor, 1663.

Among the oldest records in the church at Poole are two brass plates, about 30 x 10 inches each, saved from the old church, and now screwed on the inside of a closet door of the vestry. One reads: "Here lyeth the body of Edward Man of this Town and Couty of Poole, Marchat, whoe died Deceb. XXII., An Domi, M.D.C.XXII. His wife Eleanor made this Memoriall of Him."

ROBERT MANN, Esq. (possibly a son or grandson of Edward of Ipswich), who settled at Linton, in Kent, Eng., was father of Sir Horace, Galfridus, James and Edward [the three last were army clothiers]. Sir Robert Walpole, in 1737, appointed Mr. Horace Mann to the English Legation at Florence, Italy, and two years later to be Minister, which office he retained through life. He died at Florence, unmarried, Nov. 16, 1786, æ. 85. "On the 15th of Feb. 1755, Mann was raised to the dignity of a Baronet, with reversion to his brother Galfridus." Mr. Chute, at Sir Horace Mann's request, furnished him with a motto for Mann's shield of arms, and in part allusion to the goats in Mann's arms, happily suggested "Per ardua stabiles,-steady in difficult places. "All your friends approve it," wrote Walpole. "It alludes so well to the goats," wrote Mann, "that I am justified in taking it." Sir Horace in life never returned to his native land; but by a pre-arrangement with his distant cousin Sir Horace Walpole, son of Sir Robert, the Prime Minister, he maintained a continuous correspondence with him, covering a period of more than forty years. "Sir Horace Mann's body was deposited at Linton (Kent), where Walpole had erected a monument to his twin brother, Galfridus." The Baronetcy reverted to Horace, the eldest son of Galfridus,-thus, the second Sir Horace Mann; but the latter "did not again marry." Dr. Doran, in his work entitled "Mann and Manners at the Court of Florence," adds: "Linton, however, has continued in the family 'by the distaff.' Catharine, daughter of Galfridu Mann, in 1771 became the wife of James Cornwallis, fourth Earl Cornwallis [Arms below], and subsequently Bishop of Litchfield and Coventry. Their son James, the fifth and last Earl inheriting Linton, dropped his family name, and took that of Mann only. This last Earl's only surviving daughter, Lady Julia Mann, married in August, 1862, William Archer Amherst, Viscount Homesdale, eldest son of Earl Amherst." "The House is fine," said Walpole, in 1757, "and stands like the Citadel of Kent. The whole country is its garden. So rich a prospect scarce wants my Thames." "The house is occupied by Lord and Lady Holmesdale, and Mann's old home could hardly be in better keeping." (See Sir Horace Mann's letters in Walpole's works; also, Dr. Doran's "Mann and Manners," the latter rich in illustrations of Court life in Italy, from 1740 to 1786.)

CAMBRIDGE OR WRENTHAM BRANCH.

- 1. WILLIAM MAN,* who early settled at Cambridge, Mass., it is said, was born in England (Kent County?) about the year 1607, and was the youngest of eleven children. He married first, in 1643, Mary Jarred (who also-came from England). He married for a second wife Alice Tiel, June 11, 1657. He died in 1662, leaving a will and schedule of his property without his signature (see Mid. Prob. Rec.). His only child and son was:
 - 2. i. Rev. Samuel Man, B.A., of Wrentham, Mass., b. in Cambridge, July 6, 1647. The record says "his parents were esteemed truly religious," and that they early designed their son for the ministry. He was graduated at Harvard College in 1665. May 13, 1667, commenced to teach in Dedham, and taught five years there. He preached to the small society in the part of Dedham, now Wrentham, till March 30, 1676, when the inhabitants were drawn off by reason of "an Indian war," after which the Indians burnt all the dwellings but two. He appears again in Dedham as a teacher, in the years 1676, 1677 and 1678. Nov. 13, 1677, the town of Rehoboth "voted, that an invitation might be given to Mr. Man for to be helpful in the work of the ministry for this winter." Early in the spring of 1678 he was engaged to preach at Milton; but returned to Wrentham, with "divers of the inhabitants," Aug. 21, 1680. There he continued his ministerial labors till a church of ten persons was gathered; April 13, 1692; was ordained and preached his own ordination sermon. Oct. 26, 1699, "in dead of night," his dwelling house with the church records were burnt. It is said that he was much afflicted with bodily weakness and infirmities, and that for twenty-five years before his death did not go out of his own town. One of the first men of the Province said that "he was not only a very good, but

[†] What is supposed to be the private record of Rev. Samuel Man, reads: "Oct. 25, 1699. "His ordinary sermons were fit for the press," and yet such was his humility that he thought nothing of his worth publishing. He died at Wrentham, May 22, 1719. He m. May 19, 1673, Esther, b. Sept. 28, 1655, dau. of Robert and Margaret (Hunting) Ware, of Dedham. She d. Sept. 3, 1734.—Ext. "Sibley's Harvard Graduates," vol. ii. p. 190. He was beloved by his people. His last sermon, March 1, 1719, was from the text in Ecclesiastes i. 14: "I have seen all the works that are done under the sun, and behold all is vanity and vexation of spirit." (19.) HORACE⁶ MANN, LL.D. (Thomas, Nathan, Thomas, 1 Samuel, William, statesman and educational philosopher, was born in Franklin, Mass., May 4, 1796. He was graduated at Brown University, and commenced the study of law. Elected to the Massachusetts Legislature in 1827. His first speech was in favor of religious liberty; his second a plea for railways. He was the founder of the State Lunatic Asylum, and an advocate of temperance. He removed to Boston, and about 1836 was President of the State Senate. He edited the Revised Statutes of the State, and was for eleven years Secretary of the Board of Education. For many years he devoted his whole time to the cause of education, introduced normal schools, paid committees, etc. In 1843 he visited the educational establishments in Europe, and his report was reprinted both in England and America. He was an incessant worker, and conducted a large correspondence. He was elected to Congress in 1848, as successor to John Quincy Adams, and opposed the extension of slavery. At the close of his congressional term he accepted the presidency of Antioch College, at Yellow Springs, Ohio, where he labored successfully until his death, Aug. 2, 1859. For a more particular account, see "Life of Horace Mann," by his widow, Mrs. Mary Mann.* He married first, Sept. 29, 1830, Charlotte, daughter

^{*} Mrs. Mann has kindly furnished the following "sketch" for publication:

[&]quot;Horace Mann was born in Franklin, Mass., on the 4th of May, 1796. His father, Mr. Thomas Mann, was a farmer; his mother, Miss Stanley, was a woman of good intellect and fine moral sense. Horace Mann's parents had not the means to give him early advantages; but they inspired in him an adoration of learning; and late in life he enjoyed some small opportunities of acquisition, of which he made the most. His naturally logical mind served him in his self-education, and the mere dry bones were but a trifling element in his development. He said of himself in a letter to a friend, 'My teachers were very good people, but they were very poor teachers. Looking back to the school days of my mates and myself, I cannot adopt the line of Virgil,

'O fortunatos nimium sua si bona norint!'

I deny the bona. With the infinite universe all around us, all ready to be daguerreotyped upon our souls, we were never placed at the right focus to receive its glorious images. With all our senses and our faculties glowing and receptive, how little were we taught! or rather how much obstruction was thrust in between us and nature's teachings. Of all our faculties, the memory for words was the only one specially appealed to. All ideas outside of the book were contraband articles, which the teacher confiscated or rather flung overboard. These few words are a key to his character and life-work. That others should be put 'at the right focus' was the aim of his life. He studied law at the Litchfield School, and entered upon a great career, but he turned aside from it to devote himself to education; and after remodelling the original common school laws of Massachusetts, he accepted the presidency of Antioch College, where unsectarianism and co-education were the basal principles. His training in the Legislature of his native State, where he held the highest position, gave him a great advantage in training young men for life. A sketch of his uneventful life—uneventful except to himself-may be found in Livingstone's Magazine of eminent Americans, which carries him to the period when he left his native State for Ohio. His congressional life is embodied in a volume of his speeches, and his educational essays have been published in two volumes since his death.

REHOBOTH BRANCH.

JAMES MAN's wife, of Rehoboth, Mass., was "presented to court for continuing a meeting from house to house on the Lord's Day, Oct. 2, 1650."—(Plymouth Court Rec.)

JAMES MAN (probably the foregoing), is found among the "enrolled freemen" at Newport, R. I., May 17, 1653. An account of a portion of his will, made Nov. 13, 1689, is in the Providence, R. WILLIAM MAN¹ was one of the early settlers and original "Proprietors" of Providence, R. I. The lands transferred by Roger Williams to his associates, were subsequently divided into what were called "home lots" and "six-acre lots," and in a list of fifty-four persons in 1638, appears William Man.—(R. RICHARD MAN

AND HIS DESCENDANTS,

WITH AN INDEX.

(PRECEDED BY A BRIEF SKETCH OF THE TOWN IN ITS EARLY HISTORY.)

COVERING A PERIOD OF TWO HUNDRED AND FORTY YEARS.

1644-1884.

EARLY SCITUATE AND ITS INHABITANTS.

This historic old town, one of the first settled in Plymouth County, is situated on the coast about mid-way between Boston and The earliest notice of settlement on record bears date 1628; it is certain, however, that the Pilgrims of Plymouth explored the shores somewhat earlier, and took notice of this favorable place for a settlement. History affirms that many of the first settlers of this town were "men of education and easy fortune, who left homes altogether enviable, save in the single circumstance of abridgment of religious liberty." The "Men of Kent," as they were called (from Kent County, England), settled at and near what is now called the Harbor, and on the cliffs bordering on the sea shore. It is said, "early as the year 1639, Scituate contained more men of distinction and fair fortune than at any period since." Some of them were "celebrated in English history for gallantry, loyalty and courtly Of these, were: Vassall, Hatherly, Gilson, Cudworth, Hinckley, Foster, Tilden, Stedman, Saffin, Annable, Chittenden, Clapp, Cobb, Josselyn, Adams, Robinson, Stetson, Hatch, King, Preble, Turner, Williams, Sutton, Hoar, Ensign and others. A few years later came in the families of Otis, Barstow, Ticknor, Brooks, Briggs, Barker, Church, Chandler, Clarke, Collamore, Bryant, Bird, Bourne, Allen, Cushing, Curtis, Delano, Man, Ewell, Hewett, Holmes, Jacobs, Jones, Litchfield, Lincoln, Cowen, Lewis, Little, Lowell, Lombard, Fuller, Parker, House, Merritt, Nash, Pierce, Pierpont, Randall, Rogers, Stockbridge, Sylvester, Torrey, Jenkins, Hobart, Wade, Wanton, Willard, Winslow, Wilson, Woodworth, Young and others. Descendants of the above are now found located in nearly every State in the Union. The early clergymen who were born in England were: Giles Saxton, John Lathrop, Charles Chauncy, Henry Dunster, William Witherell and Nicholas Baker. Dunster and Chauncy were the first and second presidents of Harvard University. William Vassall was the shining literary light, who bitterly opposed Rev. Dr. Chauncy, and disrupted the church. Foster, Hoar, Saffin and Barker were the first lawyers of the town. John Hoar, the lawyer and farmer, removed to Concord, Mass., in 1659 or '60, and his descendants are well known in the State and Nation.

The Cushing and Otis families have been very prominent. William Gushing, LL.D., one of the first justices of the United States Supreme Court, who administered the oath of office to President George Washington, lies buried here in his own selected enclosure, and near his once famous mansion. Of the long list of persons mentioned in this article, Mr. Timothy Hatherly deserves a brief notice. With his abundant fortune, he preëminently enhanced the early prosperity of Scituate. He first arrived at Plymouth in the ship Ann, 1623, and erected a house there, which was destroyed by fire. He went to England in 1625, but returned hither in 1632, and settled in Scituate, where he came into possession of a grant of land nine miles square, called "Conihassett Grant." A portion of this land had already been taken by "squatters"—the early settlers—but adjustments were made, whereby a deed of copartnership was signed in 1646. These Conihassett partners (twenty-six in number, see p. 57) appointed their clerks, surveyors, committees, agents, etc., and conducted their affairs with all the efficiency of a corporate town. They laid out and maintained roads until 1715, and records which fill a large volume were kept of all their transactions in perfect order. Their last meeting on record was 1767. Of the two ancient burial grounds, where lie buried the venerable fathers, one is barely visible by its ancient and weather-beaten head-stones; the other, where lie the ashes of Rev. William Witherell* and others, was long since desecrated by ruthless hands, who removed the slabs and ploughed the soil.

^{*} Rev. William Witherell, who antagonized Dr. Chauncy's mode of infant baptism, and who baptized Gov. Josiah Winslow, was born in England in 1600; ordained pastor at Scituate in 1645, and died in 1684. He administered at Scituate six hundred and eight baptisms. Many anecdotes are related of him; one as follows: Mr. Bryant entered the church after services commenced. Mr. Witherell at close of prayer thus addressed him: "Neighbor Bryant, it is to your reproach that you have disturbed the worship by coming in late, living as you do within a mile of church. Especially so, since here is goody Barstow, who has milked seven cows, made a cheese, and

This town suffered early by the Narraganset Indians. March 26, 1676, Capt. Michael Pierce, of Scituate, with less than eighty whites and friendly Indians from the neighboring towns, had a desperate encounter with the foe near what is now the town of Rehoboth, Mass. He was killed with fifty-two Englishmen of his company. The Indians being in great force, then marched towards Scituate, burning houses and murdering the inhabitants. Deane informs us, that in their progress over "Walnut Tree Hill" they entered Ewell's house, which stood at the "turn of the road." Ewell's wife was alone, save an infant grandchild, John Northey, sleeping in the cradle. The house being situated beneath a high hill, they had no notice of the approach of the savages until they were rushing down the hill towards the house. In the moment of alarm she fled towards the garrison, which was not more than sixty rods distant, and either through a momentary forgetfulness or despair forgot the child. She reached the garrison in safety. The savages entered her house, and stopping only to take the bread from the oven (which she was in the act of putting in when she was first alarmed), they rushed forward to assault the garrison. After they had become closely engaged, Ewell's wife returned by a circuitous path to learn the fate of the babe, and, to her happy surprise, found it quietly sleeping in the cradle as she had left it, and carried it safely to the garrison. Shortly after the house was burnt.

The court records abound with curious items. A. D. 1660, "William Holmes' wife was accused of beinge a witch. Dinah Sylvester, walked five miles to the house of God in good season." Mr. Witherell wrote verse superior to the poetry of Dunster. In an elegy on the death of his friend, Gov. Josiah Winslow, after extolling highly his many virtues, he suddenly breaks forth thus:

"But why do I burn Tapers in the sun,
Or midst great cannons, let fly my pot-gun;
His worth transcends the weakness of my quill,
As lofty mounts o'ertop the pismire hill.

* * * * * * * * * * *

Had I an hundred eyes like Argus, I
Would weep them all purblind, or pump them dry.
I'd rather drink the tears of my old eyen
For sweet JOSIAH, than quaff muskadine.

accuser. Witness sworn said she saw a beare about a stones throw from the path, but being examined, and asked what manner of tayle the beare had, she said she could not tell, for the head was towards her." Probably the bear alleged was William Holmes's wife in that shape.

The physical changes are marked since the first settlement of this ancient town. By the constant attrition of the tides and storms the cliffs are gradually wasting away. The early records mention the "Live Oak Forests." The first ship building of the colony was done on the banks of North River, a sluggish stream affected by the tide. A noticeable feature of the town at this late day is the little colony of colored people—descendants of the slaves, who in early times were numerous at this place. This town (which included Hanover prior to 1727, and South Scituate up to 1849) has many very ancient and historic mansions; old buildings still standing, In another way Scituate has been made erected 1636 and later. famous. Here lived the author of the poem, "The Old Oaken Bucket." The maternal cottage of Woodworth, the "dairy-house," and the "moss-covered bucket" are gone, but still to be seen as of vore is

"The wide-spreading pond, and the mill that stood by it; The bridge, and the rock where the cataract fell."

The well also remains unchanged, but a flat cover is substituted for the curb, and the water is taken into the kitchen by a pump. The historic old mill has been in constant service for two hundred and forty years, and is now busily at work as in Woodworth's childhood.

RICHARD MAN

AND HIS DESCENDANTS:

Rev. Samuel Deane, in his history of Scituate, published in 1831, says:

"Richard Man [planter] was a youth in Elder Brewster's family, and came to Plymouth in the Mayflower, 1620. He was one of the Conihassett partners in Scituate, 1646. His farm was at Man Hill* [a well known place to this day], south of great Musquashcut pond, and north of John Hoar's farm. There is no record of his marriage here. His children: Nathaniel, born 1646; Thomas, 1650; Richard, 1652; Josiah, 1654. Nathaniel lived in Scituate, but left no family. In 1680 he made over his estate to his brothers, Richard and Thomas, and took a bond for support. This was on account of infirm health. Josiah deceased early, or removed. Thomas had children: Josiah, born 1676; Thomas, 1681; Sarah, 1684; Mary, 1688; Elizabeth, 1692; Joseph, 1694; Benjamin, 1697. Thomas had lands at Rehoboth, and probably deceased there. He was in the Rehoboth battle with Capt. Pierce, 1676, and was severely wounded. Richard had children: John, born 1684; Rebecca, 1686; Hannah, 1689; Nathania, 1693; Richard, 1694; Elizabeth, 1696; Abigail, 1698. Rebecca, widow of Richard, Sen., married John Cowen, 1656."

A historian, and more especially the compiler of a genealogical work like the History of Scituate, is not expected to be infallible. Deane, though in error in his statement that Richard Man "was a youth in Elder Brewster's family," and "came in the Mayflower, 1620," was, nevertheless, a good annalist. There was a "youth" in the family of Elder Brewster by the name of Richard More, who married Christian Hunt, Oct. 20, 1636. Deane probably confounded the two names. And his assertion that Thomas Man, of Scituate, "was in the Rehoboth battle; had lands at Rehoboth, and probably deceased there," is another error equally obvious. There was a Thomas Man of another branch (see p. 29), a resident of Rehoboth, who, undoubtedly, was the one who came out of that noted Indian fight in 1676 "with a sore wound."—(See Bliss's History of Rehoboth.) James Savage, LL.D., in his Genealogical Dictionary, claims that Deane must have been also mistaken in his assertion that Richard Man came in the Mayflower, 1620, and adds: "The person who had share with Brewster's lot in the division of cattle, 1627, was not Mann but More (v. Davis's Morton, 382), and Bradford gives the Mayflower Richard More to be counted with the other heads to Brewster, six in number," etc.

Richard Man* (planter) appears next in 1646 with twenty-five other persons in the well known "Conihassett grant†" deed from the venerable Timothy Hatherly.—(See Old Col. Rec.)

^{*} Richard Man was one of the twelve men "impannelled and sworne" the 15th of November, 1655, "to looke on the body of the daughter of Willam Pakes.

By the appointment of mee, Timothy Hatherly."

[&]quot;Wee find Willam Pakes his well to bee very dangerous, as both in that it lyes at the foot of a hill, as also haucing noe fence aboute itt to preserve a child from shooting or tumbling in: soe the child falling or tumbling in the water was the cause of the death of Thankful Pakes."—(Plymouth Col. Rec., Vol. iii. p. 92.)

[†] Within this territory was included a large tract of land which the Colony Court had granted to four gentlemen, called "merchant adventurers of London." The following court order, A.D. 1633, relates to this subject: "That the whole tract of land between the brook at Scituate, on the N. W. side, and Conihassett, be left undisposed of till we know the resolution of Mr. James Shirley, Mr. John Beauchamp, Mr. Richard Andrews and Mr. Timothy Hatherly." In October, 1637, the above tract was granted to the above named gentlemen, "extending three miles up into the woods from the high water mark in the brook," etc. This grant was purchased by Timothy

Many of this company had already located upon these lands; thus an amicable adjustment was made with those persons. The partners were: Mr. Charles Chauncy, pastor of the church; Thomas Chambers, planter; John Williams, Sen., farmer; James Cudworth, salter; Joseph Tilden, yeoman; Henry Merrett, planter; Thomas Rawlins, Sen., planter; Thomas Tarte, planter; John Hoar, farmer; Richard Sealis, planter; Thomas Ensign, planter; Thomas Chittenden, weaver; John Stockbridge, wheelwright; John Allin, planter; Thomas Hiland, planter; John Whetcomb, planter; John Woodfield, planter; Edward Jenkins, planter; John Hallett, planter; Ann Vinall, spinster; William Holmes, planter; John Whiston, planter; Gowin White, planter; John Daman, planter; Rhodolphus Eallms, planter; Richard Man, planter;

1656, 6 May [Bradford, Governor.]

The wife* of Richard Man, deceased, doth give vnto her three youngest children, to each of them five pounds: and Captaine Cudworth standeth bound to see the same pformed out of the estate of the said Richard Man .- (Plymouth Col. Rec.)

^{*} Rebecca Man (widow of Richard Man) married John Cowen "the last of March, 1656." John Cowen and wife Rebecca lived in Richard Man's house until 1670.—(See controversy Plymouth Col. Rec., also on p. 60.) Their children were: Joseph, b. 1657; Mary, 1659; John, 1662; Israel, 1664; Rebecca, 1666. Joseph Cowen, b. 1657, was killed with fourteen others of Scituate in the Indian fight at Rehoboth, 1676. John Cowen, Sen., was from Scotland. He purchased lands in Conihassett (Scituate), north of Sweet Swamp. His house stood where Stephen Litchfield's did in 1830. As an evidence of his Scottish spirit I insert the following "Court Record":

Nathaniel Man, the Sun of Richard Man, was Borne the 23 of September, 1646.

Thomas Man, the Sun of Richard Man, was Borne the 15 of August, 1650.

Richard Man, the Sun of Richard Man, was Borne the 5 of ffebuary, 1652.

Josiah Man, the Sun of Richard Man, was Borne the 10 of December, 1654.—(Scituate Rec.)

The compiler has not traced the family line in England. By examining what is printed of English Records on pp. 9 to 17 of this work, the reader can judge as well as the author, independent of a more extended research, regarding the ancestry of Richard, anterior to his settlement in Scituate. Undoubtedly, he married (Rebecca ———) in the mother country, and, probably, had no children there. William⁵ Mann (Ensign, Ensign, Thomas, Richard), a person of intelligence and remarkable memory, on his death-bed in 1861 related to the writer, that his father told him that Richard Man, Sen., came from the County of Cornwall,* England, "with" or "had" seven sons. One theory in connection with this statement is, that Rebecca, the widow of Richard, married John Cowen, 1656, and by him had three sons, making "seven sons" in both families, who were probably brought up together and cared for under one roof (see p. 58). But traditional accounts are so unsatisfactory, the writer will refrain from mentioning others.

Att this Court, John Cowin was indited for speaking contemptable words 5 June, Prence,
Gov^r.

Att this Court, John Cowin was indited for speaking contemptable words against the royal dignity of England, in that hee said hee scorned to be in subjection to any English man, and that there was neuer any Kinge in England that was an English man but one crooked backed Richard, a crooked rogue, just like such an one as hee named, vizs. a crooked man well known in the town of Scittuate. The case being put vpon tryall the jury brought in not guilty, and soe hee was by open proclamation cleared," and ^{1672-3,}Anthony Dodson, of Scittuate, sued John Cowen and Rebecka, his wife,

4 March. claiming £100 damage, "for vngroundedly saying and reporting this yeare,
'72, that the said Dodson sayed that John Williams sayed William Rogers broke vp his house, by which saying and reporting of John Cowin and his wife, the said Dodson is wronged, reproached, and defamed, and soe comes to be damnifyed. The jury find for the defendant."

^{*} In reply to a letter of the author, Rev. Charles Noel Mann, of St. Issey Vicarage, Cornwall, Eng., wrote under date "12 March, 1880," regarding Richard Man, thus: "From the Register Books of the Parish—no trace of him exists in any branch of our family."

Richard was a farmer, and one of the original land proprietors. His foresight, no doubt, led him to select one of the most beautiful locations for a residence on the coast.) His neighbor on the south was John Hoar, who early removed to Concord, Mass. On the east of him was the sea; north, "Musquascut Pond"; still further north, and bordering the "Pond," were the "Farmes," so-called. In an attempt to cross this pond in February, 1655, on the "iyee," he was drowned (see p. 57). Like most of the earliest settlers, he has no monument to mark his grave. It appears that he was a man of some note, and much respected in the Colony. Among his descendants may be found many in the various professions, trades, etc. A great proportion, however, have been and are farmers. As will be seen, the descendants are now scattered from Maine to California.

RICHARD¹ MAN and wife Rebecca ——, had the following children, born in Scituate, Mass.:

> i. *Nathaniel, b. Sept. 23, 1646; d. July 20, 1688. No children.

* 1670. 5 July. Wheras Nathaniel Man, of Scittuate, formerly sued his father in law, John Cowin, att the Court of the celectmen of Scittuate, for vseing and improveing his house and lands without his order, and that Court tearmed it a vexatious suite, and find not themselves in a capasitie to issue the difference, althoe the said Man sued not vpon title, but for trespass, to the damage of thirty nine shillings, and being noe way releived by the judgement of the above said Court, the said Man was necessitated to appeale from the judgment of that Court to his Mattes Court held heer this day. This appeale was not pleaded to. Soe as refered to the jury, but was otherwise determined. See Booke of Orders, July Court, Anno 1670.—(Plymouth Col. Rec., Vol. vii. p. 160.)

In 1680 Nathaniel made over his estate to his brothers, Thomas and Richard; and Thomas signed a bond for his support. This was on account of infirm health .-(Plymouth Prob. Rec.)

The following receipt appears on the "Court Record":

"Received this 30th of October" [prob. 1671], "of my father in law Cowin five pounds for the vse of Josiah Man, which hee was to have by the Court order, of his father Cowine; wee owne it received by vs, Thomas Man and Richard Man, as witnes where wee have hearvnto sett our hands.

who is mentioned in the will) are recorded in the town of Scituate record of births. His name appears in the Old Colony Records, deeds, etc., and he was one of a coroner's jury "26th March, 1677." In 1680 he was "propounded as a freeman for the next year if approved." He probably came into possession of that portion of his father's estate whereon the buildings stood, prior to 1679. From time to time, he added to his lands and estates. There appears more than twenty transfers to and from him, in marsh and uplands, in the town of Scituate.—(See Plym. Co. Registry.) In one or two deeds, he is called a wheelwright.) The following receipt may be found in Old Col. Rec., vol. v. p. 174.

(3) RICHARD² MAN

(Richard¹), born in Scituate, Mass., Feb. 5, 1652; married Elizabeth Sutton, born 1662; eldest daughter of John Sutton, of Scituate, and granddaughter of Elder Nathaniel Tilden.* [The latter a wealthy citizen who emigrated from Tenterden, in Kent, England, before 1628, and settled in Scituate. Richard was three years old at the time of his father's death, and only four when his mother married John Cowen.† At eleven years of age he was apprenticed to Mr. Thomas Hinckley [Governor of Plymouth Colony from 1681 to 1692], of Barnstable, for the term of ten years. He received a grant of land in Connecticut, for his services in the "Indian War." §

[§] Richard Man deeds to "my well beloved son Nathl Man a tract of land granted by ye General Assembly of ye Mass. Bay. I being one of the shounders (soldiers) in ye former Indian War and especially in ye Narragansette Sortie Fight commonly so called." The foregoing "tract of land" lies in Hebron, Ct., where the deed is recorded. It bears date Nov. 21, 1728.—(Letter of Mrs. C. M. Phelps.)

In 1703 he sold his farm in Scituate, to his brother Thomas, and about the same time calling himself a "planter," deeded six and two thirds acres of "Connihasset lands" to Gershom Ewell. At Plvmouth Registry Deeds, vol. v. p. 125-6, is a copy of a deed dated 13th of April, 1703, where John Allvn sells his homestead and other lands in Middleboro', Mass., to Richard Man and Benjamin Booth, of Scituate. These lands, "by estimation," were more than three hundred acres, and described as being "near the Comons as ordered by Gov. Prince to Maj. Church." The author has not observed any subsequent transfer of this estate. Soon after, we find Richard Man* and family, residents at Lebanon, Conn., where he probably ever after lived, and died. The first conveyance of land to him at Lebanon, Conn., was July 6, 1705, by which one hundred acres were purchased for £25.—(Lebanon Rec., vol. i. p. 150.) He conveyed land to his son Nathaniel Man, of Hebron, Conn., Feb. 9, 1725-6, also to his son Richard, Jr., Dec. 7, 1724. Either he or son Richard conveyed a farm (situated at the north-east part of Lebanon) in 1743 to Eldad Kingsley. The place is now owned by John D. Kingsley. "There is upon the old homestead, a building now standing, which tradition says was erected about 1695, for a Quaker meeting-house. The building is two stories, and is now used for a wagon-house and granary."—(Ext. of a letter of W. G. Kingsley, Esq., of Lebanon.)

The following were the children of Richard Man and wife Elizabeth; all except Elisha were born at Scituate, Mass.:

> John, b. April 7, 1684. He was in Lebanon, Conn., 1719. (No doubt but that he removed to New Hampshire or Western Massachusetts and had a family.) Nathaniel Man, of Hebron, Conn., March 16, 1719, conveys "to my brother John, of Lebanon."—(Leb. Rec., vol. iii. p. 179.)

(Thomas, Richard), born in Scituate, Mass., April 5, 1681; m. Deborah Joy, Dec. 8, 1714. He probably resided at "Man Hill" on the southern slope of the hill. This farm was granted him by his father April 9, 1713, it being the premises formerly owned by his uncle, Richard Man, Jr. In the deeds of record he is called a " cordwainer." ^{*} In August 1725, a party of "Rogerenes" [a religious sect, so-called, and fully described in Mrs. Caulkins's His. of Norwich, Conn., p. 290], consisting of John Rogers, John Bolles, and Joseph Bolles, of New London; John Culver, Andrew Davis, James Smith, John Waterhouse, and Sarah Culver, from Groton, were going to Lebanon at the request of Mary Mann, of that place, "who sent us word," said John Rogers, "that she desired to be baptized by our Society." She was baptized after they arrived in Lebanon and a fore day letter they baptized Flight Mann. (Caulking) arrived in Lebanon, and a few days later they baptized Elisha Mann .- (Caulkins's Lebanon, p. 292.)

(5) JOSEPH³ MAN

(Thomas, Richard), born at Scituate, Mass., Dec. 27, 1694; m. Mary — His father deeded him a portion of his estate on "Man Hill" Feb. 24, 1719. He probably lived there until June 17, 1732, at which time he sold this estate to Jeremiah Pierce, and removed to Boston, Mass. Nov. 15, 1734, con. £300, Joseph Man [of Boston], is deeded by Gideon Thayer, of Braintree, Mass., a farm of "about eighty acres, more or less," situated at the "South Precinct" in Braintree. This part of Braintree was incorporated March 9, 1793, and called Randolph. In 1742, he calling himself of Hanover, Mass., transfers a portion of the above estate to his brother, Benjamin Man, of Hanover. He died in Braintree (now Randolph) about 1747. This farm is still in the family of the sixth and seventh generation from Richard.1 A very old house is still standing on this estate. It is situated about two miles north of the village of Randolph, Mass. Joseph³ Man was executor of his father's will in 1732. His children were all born in Scituate:

- 12. i. Joseph, b. Oct. 10, 1722; m. Elizabeth Niles.
- 13. ii. Seth⁴ (Lieut.), b. 1724; d. Jan. 28, 1815, aged 91.

(6) BENJAMIN³ MAN

(Thomas, Richard), born in Scituate, Mass., Feb. 19, 1697; married Martha Curtis (born Feb. 14, 1701), of Scituate, Feb. 4, 1724, who died Jan. 26, 1769, and he March 2, 1770. His father sold him lands on "Man Hill," Scituate, Feb. 24, 1719. He settled in that part of Scituate incorporated and called Hanover, 1727. "He lived, it is said, on Main St., in the ancient mansion now (1853) occupied by Mr. Hanson, not far from the Bap. M. Hs."—(Barry's Hist. of Hanover.) He was selectman in 1745. In his will, which was made Dec. 3, 1762, he mentions all of his children but Sarah. He gave his daughter Mary (who married her cousin, Elijah Man) her "full portion, £66 13s. 4d." Lemuel, and Nathaniel.

Mary, 4 b. Aug. 13, 1737; m. Elijah 4 Man (cousin), born at Scituate, Sept. 2, 1742. They had one son, Joseph, who died (unmarried) in Hanover, June 26, 1851, aged 80. Elijah Man died at Petersham, Mass., April 27, 1823, and his widow died at same town, April 7, 1825. He was a great reader, but became nearly blind before he died. She was a kind hearted woman. They lie buried in the small burying lot at the north part of Petersham (see p. 68).

(7) ENSIGN³ MAN

(Thomas, Richard) was born in Scituate, Mass., about the year 1699. He seems to have been the youngest of the family. christian name (Ensign) now singularly appears for the first time in any branch bearing the name. [Was his mother of the Scituate Ensign family?] His birth is not on the Scituate town records with the other children; but he is mentioned in his father's will (see p. 62). His name appears in real estate transfers in Scituate, from 1722 to 1759, and he is called "housewright" in the deeds. "6th of March, 1722," his father (Thomas Man) deeded him "one half moiety part" of his farm on "Man Hill"; and on the 29th of March, 1750, he sold this farm and a salt marsh for £1350, in "Bills of creddit of the province of the old Tennor" to Benjamin House. Soon after he removed to Boston, and owned a house near the corner of Cambridge and Chambers Streets. He was married by Rev. Nathaniel Eells, of Scituate, July 19, 1738, to "widow Tabitha Vinal, late of Scituate." He and his wife died within seven weeks of each other, with fever, about 1762. They had the following children, born, probably, on "Man Hill," in Scituate:

16. i. Ensign, 4 b. July 15, 1740; Harvard Coll. 1764.

ELIJAH, b. Sept. 2, 1742; m. Mary Man (his cousin), of Hanover, Mass.; she was the daughter of Benjamin's Man, and was born Aug. 13, 1737. His brother, Ensign, deeded him about sixty-eight acres of land with buildings, at north part of Petersham, Mass., March 2, 1771, bounded by estates of Elisha Ward, Daniel Duncan, John and James Stockwell. The father of the author remembers both him and his wife. He was a great reader, and became nearly blind and dependent before his decease, which occurred April 27, 1823. His widow died April 7, 1825, being very aged. They were buried at Petersham, in the "North Burial Ground." She was a kind hearted woman. They had one son only, viz.: Joseph, both who, at one time, owned a small farm in the town of Hanover. He was unmarried, and died there June 26, 1851, aged 80 (see page 67).

iii. Priscilla, b. Dec. 9, 1746; died (unmarried) in Scituate, July 29, 1831, aged 84.

Priscilla Mann* was one of the most strongly marked characters of the vicinity in which she lived. For strength of mind, moral worth and intellectual ability, probably she was not surpassed by any of her sex bearing the family name; indeed, as much could be said of her brother Ensign, whom she revered and loved. Whether these mental traits were inherited from the father or mother, or from both, is hard to determine. From all accounts at hand, we judge their parents were of quiet mien, intelligent and of high moral character. Priscilla was a paragon of excellence in her peumanship; some of her letters now in existence abound with good advice to those she addressed. In a letter to her niece bearing her name, dated at Hanover, Mass., Nov. 26, 1813, she thus briefly gives a little sketch of herself: "Tenderly watched under the eye of a kind mother for sixteen years, I was in seven weeks & one day bereft of both my parents, & ushered into the world a perfect stranger to every thing but what I had gain'd from books, for I was always at home; having no sister I had but little inclination to roam abroad, and being in town" (probably Boston) "my acquaintance was small. When I came into the country I had everything to learn & no instructor, but Nature, theory, & your father" (Ensign Man). "A constant correspondence with him was of use to me. He was my monitor. He bid me beware of the intrigues of the world, and cautiously to retain my own secrets, which I found of infinite use to me, being well assured, from what I have since seen, that by communication we put wings to our words which we can never recall." On the subject of matrimony in the same letter, she adds: "It is cruel to damp the ardour of youth; I have been young & hope I am not so very an old maid, as to think a girl of twenty three can be influenced by the same feelings of a woman almost seventy. I ever had a niceness in my choice, and could as soon have ceased to live, as to have married a man in whose character or conduct I discovered material defects. I early resolved upon a single life. My occupation gave me an unwish'd for fore-knowledge of the married world. But I love married folks as well as single ones, and I never had any reason to think they shun'd my company. Thus much for my own excuse for being single. But I recommend it to no one further than their own choice. But I would advise all girls who marry, to look for partners of steady habits, good tempers, prudence, & a sense of the moral obligations of religion."

^{*} Priscilla Mann wrote her name with a double "n." Her brother, Ensign, with a single "n" up to 1795; after that with a double "n."—ED.

In a letter to her brother, Ensign Mann, of Petersham, dated June 25, 1814, is extracted the following:

"Your British friends have landed at Scituate Harbour, burnt & carried off the Vessels. We have frequent alarm. But your Good Governor * can't spare any Cannon for fortifying, so the artillery & soldiery turn out when call'd for. If the Pious old gentleman dont act a little more like a man his Tory friends will get mad at him. One of the red hot Tories at the Harbour was the greatest sufferer. His loss was estimated at 5000 Dollars, & we find they flinch when property is touched just like other folks. We are in a queer state enough, a Generalissimo at Northampton: so good, so wise & so prudent, so Merciful. What a happy People, to be so blest with such a Head! I have seen America in one war when Our Laws were abolish'd by British tyranny. But we had men who knew how to govern themselves; and then indignantly look'd down on the obsequious addressor of Britons Governor Gage!" etc. "I know how little you will relish this letter. But in brotherly kindness you will pass it over since my scolding will do neither good nor hurt to your favourites," etc.

And in another letter to her brother Ensign, dated Feb. 25, 1820, after commenting upon the imaginary ill conduct of his long lost son William, she closes the letter as follows:

"Necessity only will keep a vicious man from pursuing forbidden paths, until he is convinced that sin is misery, and virtue alone makes happiness. All rational, innocent indulgences are allowed us by the Author of our being, nothing forbidden but what is hurtful in the moral world. How strange that our reason is so obscured by our passions! that experience can't convince us before we have run into irretrievable ruin. Sin, ten thousand times repeated, leaves its sting behind, when virtue always affords peace and pleasure, such as no misfortune can rob us of. I am fully convinced for myself that nothing can produce a sincere change in us but Supreme Love to God, viewing Him according to our highest conception of perfection as our father and friend, and the bestower of every blessing which our natures require; And that all sin is opposite to His character and nature, and the source of all temporal inquietude and misery, while we travel the journey of life. Thus convinced we shall hate vice for its deformity, and opposition to the Divine Character, and from love to Him shun and bhor it, which in my mind is the only true repentance. Not merely fearing to sin because we think we shall be personally punished for our misdeeds and would gladly sin if we were sure we could escape punishment. Such goodness to me, wont afford lasting peace of mind, or lay any foundation to build it upon; but keeps the poor marr'd vessel all its lifetime subject to bondage through fear of Death. * * * * I board at Peres Jacobs, son of David Jacobs, whom you once knew, and have made it my residence for three years past in the Old mansion house that used to be a tavern. I am handy to the meeting which I chuse to attend. I have heretofore mentioned when absent from here, of being with a child of this family who was taken sick at her sisters on Cushing's neck, and been confined there for more than two years, was living a few days since, but not expected to recover. A woman of superior understanding, and very dear to me, her mind unreproachable, and stored with useful knowledge, an ornament to her sex, and a blessing while in the world. Willing to cease from suffering, but patiently waiting her Creator's time. That such may be our happy frame at the approach of death, is the constant prayer of Your affectionate sister.

Triscilla Manno

The late president of Brown University, Alexis Caswell, D.D., in his memorial address on the life of Hon. John Barstow, in 1864, thus refers to his old school teacher at Hanover:

"His first preceptress was Miss Priscilla Mann, who taught the town school at 'Broad Oak,' and who, as another pupil of hers remarks, 'for more than half a century had been distinguished in that capacity.' He had been heard to refer to her with great respect, except that she once punished him without just cause."

A correspondent writes: "I have often heard my dear mother speak of Aunt Priscilla Mann. She commenced teaching at sixteen, and continued fifty years in Boston, Scituate, Hanover, and vicinity. She used sportively to remark, that 'all she knew about cooking was to spread her own bread and butter.' I once possessed an original poem on 'Suicide,' from her able pen, but unfortunately lost it.'

From a daughter of Peres Jacobs, born 1798: "She, Miss Mann, boarded in my tather's family when I was married, sixty-two years ago. She was a very fine writer, was capable of writing deeds and all kinds of contracts and conveyances, a woman beloved and respected by all. She was rather tall, very fleshy, well-proportioned and good looking; could converse on any subject, religious, political, or the topics of the day. She was a remarkable woman of her time, likewise she was a moderate snuff-taker."—(Ext. letter of Mrs. D. R. Wade.)

The following extract of a letter, is from a daughter of the late able divine, Father Hosea Ballou, and dated Norwich, Conn., April 17, 1881:

"It is a pleasure for me to speak of the life of the distinguished individual who was the subject of your inquiry, my beloved and honored friend,

Ma'am Mann. Her personal appearance was unusually attractive; she was tall and proportionally large, dignified in her demeanor, and moderate in all her movements; her speech was slow, her enunciation perfect. She commanding great attention, no one would think of interrupting her while she was speaking. She was doubtless a great reader, but too courteous to confine herself to books during the few hours that we enjoyed her society in the family circle; at such times she was knitting continually, in which employment she took great satisfaction. It seems very singular that you should have been informed that Miss Priscilla Mann ever wrote a poem. It may be possible, but I distinctly recollect hearing her make a remark like this, 'I never possessed a talent for rhyming, but one day being with a friend with whom I was familiar, I enquired:

If you and I should chance to die Would any mortals think to cry?

My friend immediately replied

I do suppose for the sake of our clothes They would cry enough to wet their nose.

There was so much more wit in my friend's impromptu expression than in my question, that I never made another attempt of the kind.'

Ma'am Mann possesed a spirit of remarkable serenity, her smile was rich and rare. I never knew her to descend into a broad laugh, although in everything that was comical she saw the point at once. She said in my presence that she taught forty-nine years, seven months, and three days. Being fond of argument could carry her part well in a controversy and yield with grace when her opponent got the better of her. I never doubted her being a thorough Universalist; she attended the church of that denomination regularly in Scituate, where Dr. Benjamin Whittemore was pastor. I was a mere child when I left Boston and went to board in the family of Ichabod R. Jacobs. I well remember what I thought of the old lady boarder, how noble, how stately she appeared; her black eyes were so penetrating I almost feared to encounter them; when she addressed me I felt sure of making a silly answer, I was under so much restraint; she seemed so wise and so far beyond my reach. After the lapse of more than half a century, I still consider Miss Priscilla Mann one of the noblest women I ever met. She had few equals, no superiors."-(Mrs.) M. B. Whittemore.

The last few years of her life, she boarded in the family of Ichabod R. Jacobs, in Scituate (now South Scituate), the old family mansion being only a few rods east of the town of Hanover line, and near the Universalist church, in the little village of Assinippi, called "Snappet for fun" in one of Miss Mann's letters. She died there July 29, 1831, and was buried in the Jacobs burial ground in that village. The elderly persons in that vicinity remembering their old school teacher, speak highly of her many virtues and strength of character. No doubt her goodly influence still prevails in that community. She left a will written by herself, which bears date, December 26, 1820.

The author accidentally found the following lines written by Priscilla Mann, at the age of twenty-two. They are not inserted for their elegance or correctness of versification, but to show the general thought and manner of moralizing in verse at that time.

(Richard, Richard), born in Scituate, Mass., Oct. 27, 1693. His father, Richard Man, Jr., sold his farm on "Man Hill" in Scituate, in 1703, to his brother Thomas, and about 1704 he removed with his family to Lebanon, Conn., where he purchased a farm of one hundred acres July 6, 1705. A considerable lot of land was deeded to Nathaniel Man, of Lebanon, "4 10 acre lots on Ten Mile River called plow plain fields." Date of this deed was May 29, 1713.— (Lebanon Rec., Vol. ii. p. 387.) A deed dated March 16, 1719, from Nathaniel Man, of Hebron, Conn., to "my brother John, of Lebanon." —(Ib., Vol. iii. p. 179.) Richard Man conveyed to his son, Nathaniel Man, of Hebron, a tract of land; deed dated Feb. 9, 1725-6. Seth Man (as he was called), was a farmer and extensive land proprietor, and resided on the farm that formerly belonged to his father, situated at the "West Corner," so called by the inhabitants of the town, where his descendants still live. The ancient dwelling-house is still standing on the place, and is in very good repair. He had in succession three wives, who bore him eighteen children; two by the first, ten by the second, and six by the third. He married first, Rachel Spear, Oct. 14, 1745; second, Elizabeth Dyer, Oct. 18, 1750; and his third wife was widow Deborah Dyer, daughter of Nathaniel Littlefield. (16) ENSIGN⁴ MAN

(Ensign, Thomas, Richard) was born at "Man Hill," in Scituate, Mass., July 15, 1740. He was the eldest child of Ensign Man, Sr., by wife (widow) Tabitha Vinal. His father sold his real estate and homestead on "Man Hill," in 1750, and soon after removed to Boston.

Ensign Man

It is said the subject of this sketch was prepared for college by the clergyman of the town. Be that as it may, he was graduated from Harvard University in 1764, the year the college hall and library were destroyed by fire.* At this time Man had a chamber in the Hall, where he had accumulated many books for the purpose of preparing himself to be a tutor. The fire taking all, he resolved to teach, and we next find him the same year (1764), at Lancaster, Mass., a school teacher.† He taught three years in that town, and about 1767 went to Petersham, ‡ Mass., to pursue the same employment.

It is said he had "warmly espoused the cause of liberty," and no doubt the many friends of the government party § in Petersham were ready to throw every obstacle in his path. Rev. Aaron Whitney, one of the committee, not liking his political sentiments, refused to take any part in his qualification as a teacher. "But in spite of all antipathies and objections," says Rev. Mr. Willson, "Mr. Man at length commenced his labors." He was the leader of the party in town who styled themselves "Sons of Liberty," and met on the 20th of Sept. 1768, and dedicated a "thrifty young elm" to the goddess of liberty. Willson says, "the training which Mr. Man had had in letters, made him a valuable acquisition to the Whigs, who had frequent occasion, no doubt, to avail themselves of his services in drawing up their papers, and putting their resolutions in form." At this time party spirit "ran high" at Petersham.

In August, 1770, Capt. Thomas Beaman (who acted as a guide to the British troops at Lexington and Concord, and afterwards fled, [§] Petersham at this time was one of the most prominent towns in the state, and many of its first citizens were of the government party, or "Tories." (See Willson's Address.) This romantic hill town of late years, through the influence of James W. Brooks, Esq., Prof. John Fiske, and others, has become a quiet but noted summer resort.

his estate confiscated, etc.) "padlocked" the "obnoxious schoolmaster" out of the schoolhouse. Mr. Sylvanus How and Man "without ceremony broke it open." This action led to a lengthy and bitter law suit, in which the defendants, How and Man, employed as counsel Josiah Quiney. Jr. Soon after "Mr. Man," says Mr. Willson, "had been wounded and taken eaptive by a subtler warrior, and a hero of more conquests than ever went clad in armor of metal. The minister could not convert him from his idol-worship at the shrine of liberty, nor all the armies of the royal George subdue or bind his spirit; but the minister had a gentle daughter, the glance of whose eye smote his shield through and through, cleft his helmet in twain, and left him defenceless. At the feet of Miss Alice Whitney he had by this time surrendered at discretion."

He married, August 19, 1773, Alice (born in Petersham, September 23, 1748), eldest daughter of Rev. Aaron Whitney,* the first minister at Petersham. Mr. Man purchased a farm at the north part of the town and resided there until about the year 1810; after

He continued to be the minister of the town up to about 1775, at which time he was barred from the pulpit (being a "tory,"), but continued to preach, holding services in his own house up to the time of his death in 1779. He was also a large land proprietor and extensive farmer. He carried on a large correspondence with his English friends. Children:

Ordamed pastor of the 1st church at Northborough, Mass., Nov. 4, 1767, where he died Feb. 29, 1816. He was the first historian of Worcester County, and the author of several occasional sermons. Many of his valuable MSS. were destroyed by fire at Northborough. They had eleven children. The second child was Rev. Peter Whitney (b. Jan. 19, 1770), of Quincy, Mass. (who was father of Rev. that lived with his son Thomas, where he died December 21, 1829, in his ninetieth year. His wife died September 20, 1806. Besides teaching, he prepared young men for college, and was called "Master Man," a sobriquet that he is still known by. He was of vigorous frame, a great reader, and possessed remarkable memory. He had the Bible, English poets, and many other works almost at his "tongue's end," though he had a slight impediment in his speech. His religious views are best expressed in a letter of his to his sister Priscilla, dated at Petersham, June 4, 1825, then in his eighty-fifth year. An extract of which is:

"My dear sister, I received yours of May 2d, which to my great joy informed me you was alive and well, which dissipated my fears, and gave me great happiness. * * * I feel old age very sensibly creeping upon me. I am very lame, but not so but that I crawl about like an old tortoise. I strive to bear old age well as I can. * * * With you, I have no doubt our vices are punished in this Life. It looks most reasonable, and most suitable to the character of an all-wise and all-merciful God to punish our sins here; than ten thousand years hereafter. * * * There is a book lately published, entitled an 'Inquiry,' by Walter Balfour. I was extremely pleased with reading of it. I read forty years ago Dr. Chauncey's 'Salvation of all Men,' and expected it would have been answered by some pious Divine; but I never heard it was. But this, I expect, will have the Thunders of the Vatican levelled against it, and the author of it doom'd to everlasting punishment in hell fire! * * * I have often wondered why different sentiments in religion and even in politics should create ill feelings in the hearts of men towards each other, but so it is, as Mr. Pope has well expressed it:

> 'What shocks one part, will edify the rest, Nor with one system can [we] all be bless'd, The very best will variously incline, And what rewards your virtue punish mine.'

But how any man can be edified or pleased with the doctrine: 'It is the greatest happiness of the saints in Heaven to look down into hell, and see their friends and relations tormented in flames,' I am unable to conceive. I will say with Mr. Balfour, 'The good Lord deliver me from such a Heaven.",

He was a man of large size, of good understanding, well read, and of remarkable memory. He directed the family to bury him in a plain wooden box (without a funeral) in the pasture, which plan was carried out. The characteristic oddities of the family were more apparent in the life of this William; yet he was a man of honor and strictest integrity. (See pp. 59 and 69.)

(Nathaniel, Richard, Richard,) was the eldest child of Nathaniel Man, by wife Mary (Root), of Hebron, Conn. He was born, according to the town of Hebron records, April 5, 1713; whether he first saw the light at Hebron, or Lebanon, Coin., is uncertain. His father (Nathaniel) deeded lands, May 29, 1713, calling himself of Lebanon, but soon after resided and owned land at Hebron. Joseph Man married first, Mercy—, who died April 5, 1738. He married second, Hannah Gilbert, Nov. 27, 1740, who died Aug. 15, 1777. He probably died in Hebron, 1798 or '9. A granddaughter says, "he was a farmer and miller in Hebron." He had fourteen children, two by the first wife, and twelve by the second, all of whom were born at Hebron, viz.:

(18) JOHN⁴ MAN

(Nathaniel, Richard, Richard), fourth son of Nathaniel, of Hebron, Conn., by wife Mary (Root), was born in that town, Nov. 20, 1720, and died June

4, 1806. A representative of the family, Mrs. C. M. Phelps, writes: "The Mann

farm in Hebron contains about 250 acres; the present house was built in 1782 by Andrew Mann (b. 1755). It is a large house, in good repair. The place was never sold after Nathaniel Man bought it, until my father died." From a letter of his written in 1791, directed to his brother in-law, Rev. Samuel Peters, D.D., LL.D.,* then

The author was kindly loaned a very interesting letter of his, dated "London, Oct. 24, 1786," and addressed to John and Dr. Nathl Man, of Hebron. An extract of which is: "I have appointed you (John Man) & your Son Nathaniel jointly & severally to be my Attorney & Attorneys not believing that the State of Connecticut is now graced with two other men of equal virtue & honor," etc.

^{*} Samuel Andrews Peters, D.D., LL.D., born at Hebron, Conn., 1735; died 1826; grad. Yale Coll. 1757. In 1758 he visited Europe, returned to Conn. in 1759, and became a clergyman of the Episcopal church and had charge of the churches at Hartford and Hebron. His toryism was so pronounced that he was obliged to take flight to England, where in 1781 he published a "History of Connecticut," setting forth a code of "blue laws" which was somewhat untruthful. He published in New York, in 1807, a History of Rev. Hugh Peters, his great-uncle; and a History of Hebron. He visited the Falls of St. Anthony in 1817, and took up a claim there of large extent of land. Trumbull called him "Parson Peter," in "M'Fingal." He was remunerated by the Government for losses during the Revolutionary war.

in London, one would judge him to have been of good business talent and education. He married first, Jan. 1, 1740-1, Margaret Peters (b. Aug. 1724), of Hebron, "aunt of Gov. Peters, of Hebron." She died June 2, 1789. He married second, about 1790, Hannah, widow of Samuel Kellogg, of Marlborough. He had the following children, born at Hebron, by his first wife. (Hebron records.)

(39) ENSIGN⁶ MANN, JR.

(Ensign, * Ensign, * Thomas, * Richard 1), third child and eldest son of Ensign Man, of Petersham, Mass., by wife Alice (eldest daughter of Rev. Aaron Whitney), was born there on the farm at the north part of the town, July 14, 1778.

Enfign Mannfunt

It is said he was a young man of great promise, energetic in purpose, kind-hearted, and of vigorous frame, but afflicted from youth with what was called "bilious colic," and died in a severe attack of that disease May 11, 1810, with the injunction on his lips, "take good care of my son William," then an infant of nine and a half months. He was buried near his mother, in the yard at the centre of the town, in the north part of the Rev. Aaron Whitney's burial lot. He owned the homestead farm, in company with his brother Thomas, it having been deeded them by their father April 16, 1806. In addition to this, he and Thomas had purchased an estate and mill privilege adjacent, the old growth pine timber of which (since sold) proved to be one of the most valuable lots in the county. In the division of this property after Ensign's decease, the widow made choice of the homestead estate (she not realizing, at the time, the prospective value of the timber), while Thomas reluctantly accepted the timber lot and mill property as his share. The original farm is owned by the descendants, having been in the family more than a hundred years. Ensign, Jr., married about 1808, Lydia (born about 1782), daughter of George and Sarah (Norcross) Filmore,* of Shrewsbury, Mass., and by her had two children, born on the Thomas Mann farm (prospectively Ensign, Jr's.), in Petersham. The widow married second, James J. Sanderson, 1815, and died April 23, 1865.

(40) THOMAS MANN

(Ensign, Ensign, Thomas, Richard), the second son of Ensign Man, of Petersham, Mass., by wife Alice (Whitney) Man, was born there on the homestead farm May 6, 1780. After he became of age we find the two brothers, Ensign, Jr., and Thomas, in joint ownership of the farm, formerly their father's, and a large tract of timber land, with mill privilege adjacent. After the decease of Ensign, Jr., in 1810, by adjustment, Thomas came in possession of the last mentioned estate, settled upon these lands, took his father (whose wife had deceased in 1806) to support, and by the rapid growth of the pine forests accumulated a handsome property. He was of slender frame, good height, a man of strict integrity, moderate in movement, and had a well balanced mind. (The editor of this work lived in this family during the summer of 1848.) He died suddenly at Fitchburg, Mass., Dec. 24, 1853, of heart disease, while on a busi-

(Seth, Seth, Joseph, Thomas, Richard) was born in what is now Randolph, Mass., April 4, 1781, and at an early age removed with all his father's family to turned to Massachusetts, and thereafter resided permanently in his native town. A man of good judgment, energetic and enterprising. He was early and all his lifetime engaged in widely extended business in team-work, transportation, as farmer, road contractor, merchant and manufacturer. He was among the first to engage in the manufacture of boots and shoes in Randolph (the boot and shoe town), selling in Boston, later extending his trade through all the cape towns and to all sections of the United States, his goods being known as a standard article. At his death he had a place of business in Peoria, Ill., distributing there his manufactured goods in connection with trade in general merchandise. During the war of 1812 he was much employed in providing transportation by land, as far north as Bennington, Vt., and south as far as Richmond, Va., by officers of the United States government, in supplying the army, and also in transportation for the public in general, having at one time an office in the then town of Boston.

He was much in public life, being for many years a justice of the peace, for twelve years one of the selectmen of the town, and representative in the general court of the Commonwealth in the years 1823,-'24,-'26,-'27,-'28,-'29,-'31. A Baptist in religious sentiment, he was liberal in his views, exemplary in character, ever anxious for the well-being of all, benevolent, and every object of charity found in him a cheerful giver. To the poor he gave, and also assisted them by furnishing either the means or the opportunity of aiding themselves, and more than once, in times of greatest pressure, extended his business for their benefit. Never of doubtful credit, or compelled to succumb to financial difficulties, he left a fair estate. Many yet live to remember and speak of his kindness, probity and usefulness as a citizen.

(90) LOT⁶ MANN

(Thomas, Ensign, Ensign, Thomas, Richard), born Oct. 24, 1818. in Petersham, Mass., resides at Athol, Mass. He married Jan. 11, 1862, Emily L., widow of Lot Dennis, of Petersham, and about that time purchased the well-known Seth Hapgood estate, at the Centre in Petersham, lived there a few years, and sold it to Hon. William B. Spooner, late deceased, of Boston, for a summer resi-

^{*} This farm, formerly of more than 400 acres, is situated in the "Bennet Hill" district at the north part of Petersham. Sixty years ago it was extensively cultivated by John Sanderson, one of the wealthiest farmers in northern Worcester County. He was killed in his barn July 25, 1831, while in the act of taking a pair of unruly oxen off the eart-tongue. His only surviving son, Hon. John Sanderson, has been a resident of Bernardston, Mass., about fifty years .- Ev.

(91) THOMAS MARSHALL⁶ MANN

(Thomas, Ensign, Ensign, Thomas, Richard) was born in Petersham, Mass., June 30, 1821, and died in Louisiana, Oct. 20, 1873. Mr. Mann probably had early instruction from his aged and learned grandfather, "Master Ensign Man" (as he was called), who lived in his father's family the last eighteen years of his life. This no doubt had an influence in shaping the future course of this young man. Be this as it may, we find him early an apt student among the many such at the locally well-known "Bennet Hill" district school in Petersham. Later he taught this school, attended New Salem Academy, and was in Amherst College from 1846 to 1849, where he went to prepare himself to be a Universalist minister, but on account of ill health, after being there three years, went South to teach school, and finally settled at Vista Ridge, La., married M. E. Ferguson, about 1849, a wealthy planter's daughter (it is said). who died 1860. He settled on a plantation at that place and had many slaves before the war. His time was occupied mostly in teaching school and in "preaching the gospel." They had children born there as follows:

i. Thomas Walter, b. Sept. 20, 1850; m. first, Sept. 27, 1871, Jennie C. Shage (divorced 1872); m. second, March 8, 1873, Gilley Yancy Davis, b. Sept. 22, 1855. He owns a farm and resides at Floyd, Carroll Co., La. Children by first wife: (1) William Harris, b. Sept. 28, 1872. By second wife: (2) Thomas Marshall, b. Dec. 28, 1873; d. June 26, 1880. (3) James Lott, b. Sept. 17, 1880; d. Oct. 14, 1881.

^{* &}quot;Bennet Hill" school-house was of brick, situated at the north part of Petersham, on the old road and on the top of a hill so called, from a Mr. Bennet who lived there in the early history of the town. The road was discontinued about thirty-five years since, and the school-house taken down a few years later. In the remembrance of the author, the pupils of this school, for many years under the instruction of a superior teacher, Miss Eunice Sanderson (now Mrs. John Holman), were considered above the average in point of scholarship and literary attainment.—Ed.

(92) SAMUEL MANN

(Samuel, Ensign, Ensign, Thomas, Richard), the only surviving son of Samuel Mann, Sr., of Petersham, Mass., was born in that town October 21, 1832, and married his cousin Maria Antoinette Luce, July 3, 1854. He resides in the southerly part of Athol, within a few rods of Petersham town line and near his father's old homestead. The author of this work was a school-mate of his at the "Bennet Hill" district school. He was considered the intellectual genius of the neighborhood, and his services were not unfrequently in demand when difficult problems were perplexing to the student.

Sanford B. Cook, Esq., the present town clerk of Petersham, another school-mate and who has been associated with Mr. Mann in teaching, writes concerning him thus:

"Samuel Mann, Jr., is strongly developed physically, and in youth was quite an athlete. He has a mind of large calibre, and is almost constantly occupied in original thought. In childhood an apt scholar; in youth and mature years he delighted in the study of mathematics and the natural sciences, and became a proficient scholar therein. He was educated in the public schools of his own town, and in New Salem and Wilbraham Academies; has taught several terms in the public schools of Petersham, Athol, and Barre, with good success; was associate teacher in Farmer's Hall Academy at Goshen, N. Y., for about six months in 1866, where he did good work, having charge of the mathematical and scientific departments.

About 1856, he spent a season employed in the government survey on the frontier in the northwest, and here, from his superior mathematical ability, he was assigned the nice and critical work of 'meandering' the small lakes which abound in that country. In later years he has done much land surveying in the vicinity of his home. He has a great taste for drawing; though without special culture in this direction, he has nevertheless used his pencil to good advantage, having completed a large number of beautiful pictures, many of which are considered very valuable and would reflect credit upon the most accomplished artists. Since he was forty years old, his health has been considerably impaired, and in consequence he has only engaged in the lighter kind of work. He is a man of integrity, kind-hearted, and generous almost to a fault."

(107) JUDGE BENNING® MANN

(John, John, Nathaniel, Richard, Richard) was born in Orford, N. H., Nov. 25, 1781. But little is known of his early life. With his two brothers, Cyrus and Joel, he preferred a professional course, and was educated at Dartmouth. He married his cousin, Phebe Mann (see p. 111), of Hebron, Conn., Dec. 25, 1806, and settled in Stafford, where he engaged in the practice of law. Here he remained some sixteen years, and here his children were born. It was during his residence here that he was Judge of Tolland County Court. About the winter of 1822, with his cousin Nathaniel Mann and Dr. Joseph Sibley, he engaged in some new business undertaking, and removed to Sidney, Delaware County, N. Y., where he remained three years. From this place he again removed to Hartford, Conn., where he passed the remainder of his life. Here he resumed the practice of his profession.

Without his solicitation and entirely unknown to himself, his friends procured his appointment as United States Marshal for Connecticut, under Polk, which office he filled to the satisfaction of all. He could have retained the position during the next term, but refused it. He also served with credit as Senator in the Legislature of the State. Afterward he was appointed Justice of the Police Court of Hartford, a position which he held for thirty years, when his term expired by law, he having reached the age of seventy. After that time he was Grand Juror and Clerk of the Police Court for nearly eleven years, which position he held at his death. He died Jan. 31, 1863, at his residence on Chapel Street, after an illness of one week. He was a man of strong common sense, and possessed a keen discernment of right and wrong, which led him to decide readily upon cases brought before him, and made him a terror to evil doers. Strict integrity and modesty were marked characteristics with him. He never sought any of the public honors held by him, but when they were thrust upon him he executed his trust with fidelity to all.

At the announcement of his death the officers of the police force and the newspaper reporters met in the court room, which had been draped in mourning, and after appropriate remarks by a number of gentlemen, resolutions of respect were offered and adopted. Resolutions of like tenor were passed by the Putnam Phalanx and the Masonic bodies of which he was a member. The funeral services were held in Christ Church, of which he was a member. The church and adjacent streets were filled with people, and a long procession followed the remains to the cemetery on North Main Street, where they were interred with Masonic honors.

The following lines were written by Mrs. L. H. Sigourney on his death:

"We miss him from our streets,
The good, brave man, who held old time at bay,
Taking from four score years their fill
Of vigorous health, and casting still
Their frosts away.

We miss him in these days
When upright men are rare;
When the unvarnished purpose fails,
And gain o'er godliness prevails
With haughty air.

Son of that honored State
Where granite boulders rise,
Amid the rocky cliffs that soar
Protective round New England's shore,
Nearest the skies.

His virtues rooted deep, Nor bowed to Fashion's train, Nor truckled to the venal throng, But frowned on violence and wrong With just disdain.

Unswerving was his course
To age from stainless youth:
So we with mournful reverence pay
The tribute of our praise this day,
To sterling worth!

L. H. S."

(John, John, Nathaniel, Richard, Richard) was born in Orford, N. H., Feb. 7, 1789, and died in New Haven, Conn., July 21, 1884. He graduated at Dartmouth College in 1810, valedictorian of his class. mouth College; was ordained colleague pastor with Rev. Dr. Henry Wright, Bristol, R. I., in 1815. In 1826 he left and became colleague pastor with Rev. Ebenezer Gay, of Suffield, Conn. He left in 1829, and in 1830 became pastor of the church in Greenwich, Conn. In 1837 he was installed pastor of the Free Presbyterian Church, New York City. In 1840 he became pastor of the Howard Street Church, Salem, Mass., where he remained until 1847. He preached in Kingston, R. I., from 1847 to 1857, and afterward at Hanover Four Corners, Mass. During the revivals of 1832 his preaching was in great demand, and attended with remarkable success. Some twenty years ago he gave up the active duties of the settled ministry, resided in Morrisania, N. Y., for a time, and then came to New Haven. During these latter years he has been a much esteemed and beloved member of a little circle of retired ministers, who have been accustomed to hold meetings for mutual pleasure and profit, among whom were professors Day, Olmstead and others. He has been an active member of the Third and Davenport churches, New Haven.

He has spent considerable time during the later years of his life upon his genealogy,* which he traced back hundreds of years through an old and honored English family. He had their coat of arms. He kept a copious diary. He took a decided and outspoken position against slavery. His sympathies in theology were with the old school. His decision of character and strength of purpose carried him through many exigencies and sicknesses to a good old age.

He has resided for many years with Mrs. C. E. Gorham, of New Haven. He was sick about a week with infirmities incident to extreme age rather than from any special disease, and died early on the morning of July 21, at the advanced age of ninety-five. The funeral was attended from the Davenport Church, July 23, and the remains were taken to Newport, R. I., for interment.—The Congregationalist.

He married May 10, 1816, Catherine, daughter of Samuel Vernon, president of Newport Bank, she died May 20, 1871. Children:

The following lines are from a number of other poems written by her, in which she seems to allude to her own life, and which show her to have been a woman of tender feeling and unusual literary ability.—Communicated by Brady E. Backus, D.D., of New York city.

OUR FATHER'S HEARTH.

PILE on the wood—the winter blast Bids household fires be bright; Draw nigh the chairs—of seasons past Shall be our talk to-night. Were coldness in our hearts as rife As snows that wrap the earth, Soon, torpid love would warm to life Beside our father's hearth.

^{*} Harriet M. Mann, of Marshall, Mich., was a woman of superior character, and * Harriet M. Mann, of Marshall, Mich., was a woman of superior character, and virtues and intellectual ability. A devout Christian, fond of home and literature, possessed of keen natural wit and a good memory, she was a charming companion and wise counsellor, and was honored and beloved by all who knew her. She outlived her mother and brothers, and was never married; she devoted her later life to the care of her aged father, who survived her by a few years. Her death, which occurred in middle life, was deeply mourned by a large circle of friends and acquaintances, and by many who had experienced the benefits of her wise counsel and generative theory. erosity of heart.

He was a man of enterprise and public spirit. It is said that "he built churches, school-houses, saw-mills and bridges." The first Episcopal church built at Marshall was erected by him and given to the society; the first printing-press in that town was purchased by him and a few others. He was a supporter of Andrew Jackson, was an active member of the militia in New York, and served as colonel in his district. His wife died at Athens, Mich., Sept. 9, 1850, and buried at Marshall. 'Twas here we watched the ball's rebound, 'Awas here we watched the bail's rebound, And shook the rattling dice; Nor dreamed that pleasure e'er was found In fellowship with vice. Wetthought, like Abyssinia's Prince, Within the wide world's girth,

All fair as it appeared—but since We've left our father's hearth, Thou'st played another game than this, On the world's board; while I Have risked the sum of happiness Upon a single die. Unshrinking, we will bide the cast,

For fullness, or for dearth;
So, our world centres to the last,
Here by our father's hearth.

As brightly scintillates the flame, As in those hours of glee,
When grief, or care, was but a name,
And words as thoughts were free: But Time, the thief, can ne'er restore The effervescent mirth; As once we met, we meet no more,

Beside our father's hearth!

For some are gone. First the frail flower Drooped, gently, to the tomb;
Then the strong oak, in leaflest hour,
Crushed, sudden, to its doom.
And thou and I, of all bereft

As waters close above the stone, As waters close above the stone,
And smooth their ruffled flow,
Till by no outward trace is shown
The weight that rests below;
So we press back the tear that starts
At mem'ry of their worth;
Though grief sits heavy at our hearts,
And, by our father's hearth.

Earth's children we-and forth we must,1 Earth's children we—and forth we must,
To mingle in the strife
Begun in hope, to end in dust:
For, brother, such is life!
Come heart-warm love, or cold pretence;
Come misery, or mirth;
Our holiest thoughts will turn to whence

They sprung-our father's hearth.

(116) Hon. ABIJAH⁶ MANN

(Abijah, Abijah, Nathaniel, Richard, Richard) was a politician and political leader in the State of New York. He was born in Fairfield, N. Y., Sept. 24, 1793, and died at Auburn, N. Y., where he had been spending some time, Sept.

A Menn p

6, 1868. He was early educated in the public schools of Herkimer County, aided by the instruction of an excellent mother, who being a woman of remarkable ability, bestowed great care upon his early training. He began life as a school teacher in Oneida County, but soon became a tradesman, and being a shrewd man of business, in time acquired considerable real estate property in the principal cities and villages in the State, at length purchasing an undeveloped coal mine in Lackawanna County, Penn. He early entered political life, was a Republican of the Tompkins school, and gloried in wearing the "bucktail." He soon became a man of mark; was elected Justice of the Peace, appointed Postmaster, and finally was chosen to the Assembly in 1828. He served three successive terms, obtaining a wide notoriety for his active hostility to the proposed Chenango Canal. "It cannot be of lasting benefit," he declared in a speech; "a man can as easily lift himself over the fence by the slack of his pantaloons." He remonstrated with Governor William L. Marcy for changing positions in regard to the enterprise, and was only silenced by the Governor's assurance that the Democratic party must support the Chenango Canal so that General Jackson might be reelected President. Mr. Mann was elected to Congress in 1832, and re-elected in 1834.

Having been appointed on a committee to investigate the affairs of the United States Bank, he repaired to Philadelphia, but was denied access to the institution. He immediately procured laborers and set them to excavate their way under the building. This proceeding induced the officers to let Mr. Mann have his way; and he made a thorough investigation. Mr. Mann used to relate the story with great zest. "I had been desired by General Jackson," said he, "to come immediately to the President's house at any hour on my return to Washington. I arrived late in the night, and was refused admittance. 'My name is Mann,' said I, 'and the President wants to see me.' I was admitted; General Jackson had just risen from the bed, and walked up and down the room in an old woolen night-gown, which made him look like a ghost. 'Tell me,' he demanded, 'how stands the case?' I told him the names of members of both Houses of Congress who had received money from the bank; and he made comments as I told. Naming one most distinguished senator, I added, $70,000. 'That money is well spent,' cried General Jackson; 'he is an able man.' I named a southern Senator, adding $6,000. 'Too much, too much,' cried the old man; 'he is only a country village lawyer.' So I went through the whole catalogue, detailing one of the most extraordinary cases of official corruption then on record." The sequel of this investigation, the removal of the deposits, etc. are a part of the history of the times.

Mr. Mann left Congress at the expiration of General Jackson's term, and was elected that same autumn to the Assembly. Preston King was a member of the same House; and they were very uncomfortable members, and not over careful about the amount of trouble they gave the speaker, Mr. Luther Bradish. During one filibustering occasion, Mr. Bradish was tasked to the utmost. Mr. Mann would speak, and would not stop till three times called on by the speaker. "The gentleman from Herkimer is out of order," "The gentleman from Herkimer will take his seat," produced no effect. But he finally did sit down when Mr. Bradish shouted "Abijah Mann, Jr., take your seat." The courtly manners of Mr. Bradish were repulsive to the rough old political veteran. Several years afterwards Mr. Mann removed from Herkimer County, and opened an office in Jauncey Court, New York city, residing in Queen's County, and representing that County in the Democratic convention, over which Governor Fenton presided. Preston King was nominated for Secretary of State, and Mr. Mann for Attorney General. The American party, however, carried the State. In 1857 Mr. Mann was nominated by the Republicans for the Senate from the second district, but was defeated by Samuel Sloan. This was his last appearance before the public. But he took a lively interest in political matters, generally acting with the Republicans, though retaining his early attachment for the distinctive financial views of the "Barnburners."—(Ext. from New York Times, in part.)

Mr. Mann married, Jan. 18, 1814, Mary Ann Bruce, who died Aug. 16, 1873, by whom he had several children, three of whom only lived to grow up, viz.:

(118) Hon. CHARLES ADDISON⁶ MANN

(Abijah, Abijah, Nathaniel, Richard, Richard) was born Jan. 16, 1803, in Fairfield, Herkimer County, N. Y. His father, Abijah Mann, removed from Hebron, Conn., among the County Abijah County Count

Abijah carried with him from his Connecticut home New-England ideas of education, thrift and industry, which he tried to impress upon his family and upon the community among which he lived. He was among the founders of the Fairfield Academy, an institution which equalled in its standard and in the character of its students nearly any institution of learning in the land at that time. The paternal farm was near the village; and Charles, early showing a fondness for books and study, was allowed to cultivate his tastes and to receive a thorough English and Classical education. While attending school, as was then so frequently the custom, he helped out his limited means by teaching during vacation, and after graduation he taught in Lewis County for some time. At school he had as fellow students many men who afterwards became famous, among them Judge Hiram Denio and Rev. Dr. Barnes; with the former he maintained a life-long intimacy and friendship.

In 1822, at the age of nineteen, he went to Utica, N. Y. He was accompanied by his brother, Abijah, Jr., who on introducing him, remarked, that here was a boy "who knew nothing but Latin and Greek," adding, however, that he was willing to work. He entered the law office of Lynch and Varick, and struggled through three years of professional studies, under all the discouragements of poverty. Although comparatively friendless on coming to the city, his pleasant manners, studious habits, and general intelligence soon made him many friends, and these early friendships formed with those who too were struggling for success against odds, remained firm throughout life. In 1825 he was admitted to the bar, and was taken into the firm, Mr. Lynch retiring. He entered at once on the active practice of law, but never went very much into the courts. In 1830 Mr. Varick removed to New York, and Mr. Mann formed a partnership with the Hon. David Wager, that lasted eight years, and on Mr. Wager retiring he formed a partnership with John H. Edmunds, Esq., which lasted to the time of his death.

The partnership with Mr. Varick had a very great influence on the course of Mr. Mann's life. Mr. Varick was largely interested in real estate, and on his removal to New York Mr. Mann purchased through him the remaining interests of the great Holland Land Company in the northern towns of Oneida County. This property absorbed a large share of his time, and led his attention to real estate and business, and away from his profession. Still, although he frequented the courts very little, he gradually came to be considered the best real-estate lawyer in the County, and his opinion on all legal matters was highly prized. This property was disposed of to settlers, many of them Welch, in plots and farms, and sold largely on contract. The terms were always easy, and the creditor lenient in pressing his claims, and "Squire Mann" was greatly respected and loved by these simple folk with whom he was then brought into contact. This land speculation was successful, and laid the basis of his fortune.

As the city grew, Mr. Mann's attention was directed to many new enterprises. Always public spirited and energetic, with a sound judgment, and far-sightedness above the average, his aid was sought; his judgment followed in very many of the new enterprises which so rapidly followed each other in a young and growing town. He was active among the projectors of the Utica & Schenectady Railroad, the beginning of our present magnificent system of railways. He was a leading spirit in the Oneida Bank after its disastrous robbery, and was successfully employed with Horatio Seymour, his life-long friend, in detecting and bringing to justice the robbers. He was president of the bank for a number of years before his death, and to his influence and labors must be attributed much of its present prosperity. He was one of the founders and for many years president of the Utica Steam Cotton Mills, and his theories as to the financial management of the institution which were adopted and have been followed, have had a great deal to do with its almost unprecedented success. 1856, after a long term as director, he was unanimously elected President of the New York, Albany & Buffalo Telegraph Company. His election marked a new era in the company's history. His great executive ability here found scope for its display. The company was in a bad way, but by vigorous and decided action its wires were soon put in working order, its contracts fulfilled, and the value of the property greatly enhanced. In 1859 Mr. Mann's health compelled him to give up his position, but the work which he had done materially aided the permanent foundation for one of the greatest business enterprises of the day. Besides his business connections, Mr. Mann took an active interest in educational, charitable and religious enterprises.

He was one of the original managers of the State Lunatic Asylum, and for a long time chairman of the board. He devoted much time to this institution, and was particularly interested in perfecting its present admirable system of ventilation and heating. As a counsellor of the Utica Orphan Asylum he did good but humble service. The financial management of its affairs were largely in his hands,—his brother-in-law and wife having held the position in turn of treasurer from its foundation to the present time. He was one of the founders of the Utica Female Academy; as well as an active trustee of the Utica Free Academy before it was absorbed in the common school system. He also rendered excellent service as school commissioner for the five years previous to his death.

Mr. Mann's attention was early drawn to politics, but here he did not succeed so well. He was too honest and high-minded to stoop to the low methods of the politician, and the ideas which he advocated were not always the popular ones, though time has shown that they were right. His devotion to the public good, as well as his sound judgment and inflexible probity, early secured him a leading position in the community. He drafted the charter under which Utica was incorporated in 1832, and was elected a member of the Common Council at its first charter election, and re-elected for several succeeding terms. In 1840 he was elected to the Assembly by the Democratic party, and at once became a leader in that body. He had always given particular attention to financial questions, and the clearness and soundness of his views quickly attracted attention. He was from the first an advocate of the "pay as you go" policy, which he believed should be applied not only to individual affairs but to those of the State as well. In common with many of the leading minds of the day he realized the evils of the State debt system, and predicted the embarrassments which would ensue from its adoption. His speeches on State finances, and in defence of the policy of spending money no faster than it was earned, were widely published; and although the policy which he opposed was adopted, time has demonstrated fully the correctness of his views. In 1846, during the divisions of the Democrats, he was nominated to a seat in the Constitutional Convention. In 1848 he was an active member of the Free Soil party. He was nominated for Congress, but owing to party dissentions he failed of election. He returned to the Democratic party, but never hesitated to denounce the aggressions of the Slave Power, and to declare the necessity of opposition to them. In 1850 he was elected to the State Senate by the Democrats, and he at once assumed a leading position. On the impending passage of the unconstitutional "nine million bill" his sense of right and justice was so shocked that he advised the resignation of the Democratic Senators rather than to permit the consummation of the outrage. This act was not approved of by the electors, and a new Senate was elected which passed the bill; but the courts eventually affirmed its unconstitutionality, thus vindicating his judgment. Even those who condemned the resignation were forced to admire the unbending integrity and sacred regard for the constitutional prohibitions which impelled Mr. Mann as its leading adviser. This act really ended his political life. Business and local affairs engrossed his time, and after such an experience, he never had any heart again for politics. He therefore persistently refused all nominations, although his party friends had, on account of his well known financial skill, repeatedly urged him to accept of several subsequent nominations, particularly that of Comptroller. He was also tendered the office of Circuit Judge.

As has been already said, Mr. Mann's business success interfered with his success as a lawyer. Still, those who are competent to know speak of several cases which he argued with great ability and success. It was as a real estate lawyer that he was mostly known, and his opinion valued. A large share of his business was the management of trusts and estates for others, and few rendered more cheerfully and efficiently a greater amount of gratuitous services to women and those not capable or self-reliant enough to act in their own behalf, than he.

In his family life Mr. Mann was most happy. He married, Sept. 27, 1832, Miss Emma Bagg, whose father and grandfather had been prominent citizens of Utica from its earliest settlement. By her he had five children. As a husband and father Mr. Mann was fond and devoted. In his earlier life, before the cares and anxieties of business and public life absorbed him, he spent much of his time with his family, enjoying to the utmost their devotion and love. In the year 1851 he gave up his business and spent the year in European travel for the benefit of the health of his eldest daughter. This trip he greatly enjoyed, as his large reading and thorough knowledge of history, always a favorite study with him, enabled him to do to the utmost. His father's family were always objects of his most considerate care, and together with his brother, Abijah Mann, Jr., he extended continual and generous aid to his less successful and less fortunate brothers and sisters. During the last few years of his life, although suffering greatly from his disease,—an obscure form of brain disease,—he never complained, but was always hopeful and cheerful. His interest in the outside world never flagged, and one of the last acts of his life was to attend a meeting of the Board of his Cotton Mills. Returning from this, and while partaking of his dinner, he was seized with apoplexy, became instantly unconscious and never recovered.

An extended analysis of his character would be here uncalled for. Enough has been said to indicate his general excellence and worth, the depth and extent of his abilities. Still it may not be out of place to transcribe some of the kind words which have been said by his friends, those who knew him best.

In an editorial in the Utica Observer, Jan. 19, 1860, we find: "In him were combined, in harmonious proportions, so many of the most excellent traits of human nature, that any enumeration of his virtues would leave something still unsaid. He preserved in the highest positions the original simplicity of his habits, and was ever mindful of his early days, rejoicing in opportunities of assisting those who were similarly situated with himself and who seemed worthy of encouragement. His unswerving integrity, well balanced mind and excellent common sense pointed him out as the natural depositor of the most important trusts, while his great executive abilities enabled him to accomplish readily the vast amount of business which was thrust upon him. His moderation was wonderful; passion and excitement he never exhibited. He was governed throughout life by the firm conviction that permanent prosperity and happiness can follow only uprightness, and that retributive justice, though perhaps slowly, is surely following the dishonest and corrupt."

At the meeting of the Utica Bar, the Hon. Francis Kernan, long a friend and neighbor, remarked: "The citizens of Utica had special cause to lament the death of Mr. Mann. There were few to fill his place here. He possessed a clear, quick, comprehensive mind. He was unobtrusive in his habits, yet his usefulness was wide spread. In reference to every public movement his action and advice were always freely tendered, and were of the most beneficial kind. He was a conservative man, of far seeing sagacity, who had not only aided those enterprises useful to the community, but had stood as a bulwark against those often engaged in, which proved detrimental. In every deserving enterprise he was liberal, unselfish, wise and prudent." "As a legislator he was rather put forward into public stations by others; he did not desire it himself. Yet every one had confidence in his sagacity. No one had a suspicion that he was selfish. He possessed remarkable powers to present, either on paper or in oral debate, his views of public policy. As a lawyer he was well versed in the law, and could present his points clearly and aptly. He honored the profession to which he belonged."

Judge Ward Hunt remarked that, "professionally speaking, it was a great misfortune that he succeeded so well in business; otherwise he would have stood in the front rank as a lawyer."

The Hon. David Wager, his law partner, writes: "He was one of the gems of society, which astonish not so much by their brilliancy as by the justness and perfection of their workmanship. Like a well regulated timepiece, he was never out of order; and in relation to all his duties, public and social, he was true as the sun."

Though not a member of any church, he felt a high respect for religion, and was a faithful attendant at the Reformed Dutch Church, having been one of the original movers in its establishment in Utica. It is but just to add, that Mr. Mann's worth was fully appreciated by the citizens of Utica. The funeral was attended by most of the members of the Bar, Common Council, Mechanic Association, and other associations and companies. Nearly all the stores on Genesee Street were closed during the hours of the funeral, and the large attendance showed how closely Mr. Mann had linked himself not only with the fortunes but with the hearts and affections of his fellow citizens.

(175) Hon. FRANCIS NORTON' MANN

(Jeremiah, Joel, Joseph, Mathaniel, Richard, Richard), one of the oldest and most prominent citizens of the city of Troy, N. Y., died there at 1.30 o'clock Sunday morning, Feb. 8, 1880, in the seventy-eighth year of his age.

The following obituary is taken from the Troy Daily Times of Feb. 9, 1880:

Judge Mann was born in the town of Milton, Saratoga County, on June 19, 1802. His parents were Jeremiah Mann, who was a son of Joel Mann, a pioneer settler of Milton, and Lydia Norton, who was a daughter of Francis Norton, of Hebron, Tolland County, Conn. The subject of this sketch early evinced a disclination to follow the business of farming, in which his father was engaged. As a boy he displayed a singular fondness for books and study. The more he gratified himself in this direction the more ambitious he became to acquire a liberal education, but was obliged to content himself with the meagre facilities afforded by the common school, until having reached his eighteenth year, he resolved to leave his home and seek a residence in some place in which better opportunities for educational advancement were to be found. He went forth to win success in the race for wealth and distinction. On foot and alone he proceeded to the house of a Presbyterian clergyman, the Rev. Joseph Sweetman, in the town of Charlton, about sixteen miles from Milton. The result of the interview between the youth and the minister was that the former became a member of the latter's family for a period of two years, during which he performed such service as was required of him in return for his maintenance. He next entered the Lansingburgh Academy, where he remained one year, and on June 24, 1823, was admitted into the junior class of Union College, whence he was graduated on July 24, 1825. On the 4th day of the following October he began the study of the law in the office of Ashley Sampson and John Dickson, of Rochester, and throughout his stay there he supported himself by performing the ordinary duties of a clerk. Leaving Rochester, he continued his studies in the office of Daniel Cady, at Johnstown. A short time afterward he became a student in the office of Samuel G. Huntington, of Troy, where he remained until his admission to the bar as Attorney and Counsellor of the Supreme Court in August, 1828. Then he opened an office in this city, and here practised his profession for more than half a century, although the last twenty years of his life were chiefly devoted to the care of his large and increasing estate. As a lawyer he declined to engage in any cause devoid of merit, and he was more than ordinarily successful in the courts. He was elected a Supervisor of the second ward in 1835, and again in 1857, and as an Alderman he represented the same ward from 1844 to 1847. From 1840 to 1845 he was one of the judges of the Court of Common Pleas of Rensselaer County. He was chosen Mayor of Troy in March, 1847, and was thrice reëlected to the office by increasing majorities. At all times during his manhood Judge Mann manifested a profound interest in religious matters. He early became a communicant of the Protestant Episcopal church: was one of the founders of St. John's Church in Troy in 1830, and ever afterward continued to be a member of its vestry, occupying the position of senior warden at the time of his death. On October 25, 1848, Judge Mann was married to Mary J. Hooker, daughter of Marquise de Lafayette Hooker, of Poultney, Vt., a lineal descendant of the Rev. Thomas Hooker, founder of the city of Hartford, Conn. The fruits of this union were two sons and one daughter, all of whom survive their parents, Mrs. Mann having died July 28, 1875. About a year ago Judge Mann sustained a fractured limb by a fall upon the sidewalk, and since that time had been confined to his house. More recently he suffered a stroke of paralysis, from the effects of which he died.

Careful economy, strict attention to the performance of whatever duties, public or private, were imposed upon him, the possession of shrewd business qualities and sound judgment, enabled the deceased to amass a large competency. His property consists principally of real estate situated in this city, West Troy, Cohoes and vicinity. Judge Mann's honesty and integrity were above questioning. His obligations were always promptly met, and he rigidly exacted the same promptness from those with whom he had business dealings. The management of his large estate kept his time fully occupied, and he found little opportunity to indulge in the pursuit of enjoyment, but he was far from being unsocial, and, especially during the last few years of his life, took delight in talking of the scenes and incidents of the past. He was very closely identified with the growth and prosperity of Troy, and his wisdom and judgment were of great value in the administration of municipal affairs. He had the honor of being the chief executive officer of the city when Gen. Wool returned in triumph from the Mexican war, and presided over the public meeting of welcome held in the front of the court house, upon which occasion the mayor, in behalf of the citizens of Troy, presented the general with a magnificent sword.

Judge Mann was always a liberal contributor and earnest supporter of St. John's Church. He was for many years one of the most prominent members of the parish, and evinced a lively interest in its welfare up to the time of his death. He took a great interest in the Troy Orphan Asylum, and was a Trustee and a member of the Finance Committee, also President of the Board of Directors of the Troy Academy. He was one of the founders of the Young Men's Association, and was the member from the second ward of the committee appointed to obtain signatures to the constitution of that organization. At the time of his death he was a director of the Mutual National Bank.

(202) AZRO LEVI⁸ MANN

(Levi, Levi, Seth, Seth, Joseph, Thomas, Richard), who is a professor of Greek and Latin, residing in San Francisco, Cal., was born in Randolph, Mass., Sept. 2, 1840, and married Sept. 18, 1868, Sarah Jane Shuey, who was born Sept. 25, 1849, in Illinois, and graduated there at the State Normal School. Her father, Robert Martin Shuey, born Aug. 24, 1820 (a farmer), moved from Illinois to California in 1859, "across the plains."

The following is extracted from "The Pacific School Journal," regarding him.

Mr. Mann was educated in the public schools of Massachusetts, until he entered Middlebury College, Vermont, from which institution he graduated with distinction in 1860. During his career in college he taught three winters in New England, and "boarded around."

On leaving college in 1860, he came to California and began his career in this State as a teacher of a country school in Sutter county. He subsequently taught a country school in Yuba county. He taught in the town of Colusa one term, and was afterwards vice-principal of the Grammar School in Marysville for about three years. During his residence in Marysville, Mr. Mann read law in the office of Belcher & Belcher, and was about to apply for admission to the Bar, when he was attacked with a malarial disease and forced to seek a more salubrious climate. He next taught one term as principal of the East Oakland Grammar School. In 1866 he came to San Francisco, and was appointed to a position in the Boys' Latin School. When this school was consolidated with the Boys' High School Mr. Mann was placed at the head of the classical department, a position which he held up to the time of his election as City Superintendent in 1877.

His sterling character, correct habits and manly bearing have secured for him the admiration and hearty support of the parents of the pupils he has taught. In fact Mr. Mann was one of the most popular teachers in the Department, both with his pupils and with their parents.

Mr. Mann has filled the office of City and County Superintendent in this city since December, 1877, and has made, in our opinion, the most capable, efficient and conscientious Superintendent that we have ever had in San Francisco. He is a clear, an able and an original thinker, a good speaker and a ready and forcible writer. A few weeks after his election he delivered an address before the Dashaway Association of this city, which deservedly attracted public attention at the time.

In that address Mr. Mann ably and forcibly pointed out the evils of the existing administration of school affairs, and fearlessly advocated most important and salutary reforms.

Mr. Mann was president of the State Teachers' Association for 1877-78, and delivered an able and thoughtful address on the "American Idea of Common Schools," before that body at its annual meeting at Sacramento. This address was published in the "School and Home Journal," and is considered by our leading educators as one of the ablest educational addresses ever delivered in this State. During the past two years he has delivered many able and practical addresses before the students of the State University and several educational associations in various parts of the State-These addresses have placed him in the foremost rank of leading American educators, and have been republished in nearly all the leading educational journals of the United States. One of these addresses on "Ungraded Schools," delivered at Los Angeles last year, secured for Mr. Mann a high place in the esteem of all friends of public schools in the southern portion of the State. Mr. Mann's report of the public schools of San Francisco for the year 1878, is one of the most able, complete and valuable reports ever published in this city, and has been highly complimented by the leading journals at the East. Mr. Mann's private life is above reproach, and in his public acts he has ever adhered to right, honor and duty.
